Following Ultimatum Giving Workers' Leaders Until Tomorrow to Come to Terms, Berlin Hears They Are Losing Strength; Some Radicals Desert Rebels.

COMMUNIST ADMITS HE CAN'T WIN NOW

Workers Retire Across the Lippe; Peace Proposal Drafted at Essen; Rebels Make Military Chiefs Subordinate to Political.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, March 29.—The news from the Ruhr industrial district, the Rhineland in general, and from Westphalia, permits the conclusion that order will be gradually restored in those regions where rebellious forces of workmen have been operating. It was declared here today. At a meeting held on Sunday at Jagen, Westphalia, the three Socialist parties decided to withdraw from the Muelheim headquarters, the seat of the rebel control, and, if necessary, to fight under republican leadership against the Muelheim faction. Despatches from Hagen announced the behavior of this faction, which was characterized as "anarchistic," was declared to be held in these Socialist quarters as constituting a danger to the industrial region.

Majority Socialists Quitting the Rebel Forces.

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, March 29.—Many of the Majority Socialists who have been in the Ruhr district of Germany have quit the fighting front and now are being followed in their action by the Independent Socialists, according to a telegram from Muenster today.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sunday, March 29.—Energetic measures to restore order and to protect the German people from "illegal acts" will be taken by the Government against Communist forces operating in the Ruhr region, said a manifesto issued by the Government today. If leaders of the Communist party fail by March 29 to give adequate guarantees to Gen. von Watter, commander of Government troops in that district.

The following stipulations are laid down as conditions upon which the Government will refrain from taking drastic steps to crush those who have opposed its authority.

Unconditional recognition of constitutional state authorities.

Restoration of official civilian and police services, providing they have not been impaired by the movement supporting the reactionary regime set up by Dr. Wolfgang Kapp on March 13.

Immediate release of prisoners.

If these conditions are accepted, the Government will not intervene, but, if they are not, Gen. von Watter will receive full powers to proceed.

Prospects of a speedy peace in the revolutionary workers' movement in the Ruhr region seemed bright, following a conference of representatives of the Berlin trades unions and the Communist authorities.

There were signs of discord in the workers' army and a conflict between the military and civil leaders of the movement, and the conference declared strongly for supremacy of the political leaders.

All parties of the left sent their leaders to the conference from Berlin and those united in urging peace and the cessation of warfare.

The strongest advocate of the Communist was Dr. Paul Levy, president of the Communist party of Germany, who was recently released from prison, where he was serving a term for a political offense. Dr. Levy denounced the commander in chief of the workers' forces, Herg Lathen, and the army itself, in opposing an armistice as an attempt at military dictatorship.

Threat of General Strike.

The conference decided to demand control of all arms and ammunition, with seizure of munitions plants, particularly the Krupp and Thyssen works. To forestall the possibility of the Government's rejection of the conference's proposals, the threat of a general strike, which had been previously made to support the demands, was incorporated in a resolution by which the conference, representing the executive committees of 50 cities and districts, agreed, if necessary, to strike.

PRESIDENT WILSON TO SPEND SUMMER IN MASSACHUSETTS

White House Announces He Will Go to Home of Charles R. Crane at Woods Hole, on the Southern Coast.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—President Wilson will spend the summer at the home of Charles R. Crane at Woods Hole, a village on the southern coast of Massachusetts, near Martha's Vineyard, it was said today at the White House.

The President, accompanied by Mrs. Wilson and Rear Admiral Grayson, his physician, probably will go to Woods Hole the first of June to remain until about Sept. 1. It will be the first time since 1916 that the President has spent the summer away from the White House.

SELPH MUST PAY FOR ANY PRINTING AT U. S. EXPENSE

Burleson Orders Investigation of Charges Against St. Louis Postmaster After Receipt of More Affidavits.

By the Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Postmaster-General Burleson promised, in a letter received today by Chairman Zihlman of the House Committee on Expenditures in the Postoffice Department, that "an immediate investigation" will be made of charges that Postmaster Selph of St. Louis made improper use of the postoffice printing in that city.

Burleson's letter was in reply to a request by Zihlman submitted at a meeting of the committee, for information bearing on affidavits of a former St. Louis postal employee that Selph used Government equipment and materials to print programs for a convention of Postmasters and printing stationery for his father.

Three Affidavits Filed.

The Postmaster-General wrote: "Postmasters at offices having printing plants have not been specifically authorized by the department to print literature to be used in connection with conventions of postmasters, but it has been the practice to print such matter. This practice was in effect under previous administrations and we have continued it."

A second letter received from Burleson said that the request of the committee for a list of employees of the St. Louis office who have been discharged, reduced in rank or resigned during Selph's term would be fulfilled as soon as possible.

Additional affidavits accusing Selph of improper use of the postoffice printing were received today by Zihlman.

Philip S. Siegel, a former employee of the printing, charges that several times during 1918 he was required by Selph to print envelopes in batches of 50 to 75 bearing the return address of the Postmaster's son, Colin M. Selph III, who was then a student at a military academy at Mexico, Mo.

In the space reserved for the address on the envelope, Siegel says, he was instructed to print the name and address of Mrs. Colin M. Selph, 28 North King's highway, St. Louis. On at least two occasions, he says, he had to work overtime to complete this printing.

In another affidavit Joseph Treib, who says he was employed in the postoffice printing from June, 1917, to September, 1918, avers that he saw a printing form in the shop bearing the words, "C. M. Selph, Attorney-at-Law, 1221 St. Andrew Street, New Orleans," and that shortly thereafter he saw a quantity of envelopes in the printing with the same imprint. Treib also declares that he saw Siegel using Government machinery for printing envelopes for Selph's son, as stated in the Siegel affidavit.

WAGE INCREASE FOR MINERS TO GO INTO EFFECT APRIL 1

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, March 29.—The scale committees of the bituminous operators and mine workers in a joint conference here this afternoon, agreed to make the monetary provision contained in the award of the bituminous coal commission as affirmed by the President, become effective on April 1, and that the mines continue in operation pending the working out of a new agreement.

The award provided for a wage increase of 27 per cent.

WOOD IS TOLD HIS EXPENDITURES DISGRACE PARTY

Senator Borah Wires Republican Candidate That Practices of Campaigners Must Be Corrected.

ASKS FOR STATEMENT OF CONTRIBUTIONS

Letter From McAdoo Indorsing Federal Control of Pre-Election Expenses Put in Senate Record.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Retreating his charges of excessive expenditures in the interest of Major-General Leonard Wood's candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination, Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, telegraphed Gen. Wood today declaring that unless the practices of the Wood campaign were corrected they would "bring disgrace upon your name, upon your party and upon your country."

Information from various states, the message added, had convinced Senator Borah that his previous statements about the Wood campaign expenditures were "modest."

Text of Message.

"Press dispatches state you claim the attack upon you was to sway the voters of Michigan. You are in part correct."

"It was intended to sway the voters, not only in Michigan, but in the United States. I know of no other tribunal to which to appeal to correct these practices. But it can only be effective provided the facts I stated are correct. It is within your power to give to the people of Michigan and other states a list of your subscribers, the amount you are expending, the amount which you did expend in South Dakota, the amount which you propose to expend, for instance, in Ohio and Illinois."

"If you will make a statement of these facts over your signature, I will correct any erroneous statements which I have heretofore made. The material which is coming from South Dakota, Illinois and Ohio convinces me that I was modest in my statements. Gen. Wood, if you are not familiar with what is going on in your behalf for the presidency, I take leave to suggest that unless you familiarize yourself and correct it, you will bring disgrace upon your name, upon your party and upon your country."

"It is up to you as a soldier and as a man to come up boldly and meet these facts and either show the public that they are unfounded, or else repudiate the men who have manifested their determination to control the national convention through the use of money."

McAdoo Favore Control.

Senator Borah sent the telegram just before departing for Michigan to speak in the interests of the candidacy of Senator Johnson of California.

A letter from William C. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, in favor of Senator Borah's proposal for Federal control of pre-election expenditures, was put into the Senate record today by Senator Sheppard, Democrat, Texas. McAdoo also declared himself in favor of a congressional investigation of such expenditures as suggested by Senator Kenyon, Republican, Iowa.

BORAH TRYING TO INFLUENCE PRIMARY, SAYS GEN. WOOD

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 29.—Gen. Leonard Wood, candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, in a statement last night, declared that charges made by Senator Borah concerning the campaign methods of the Wood National Committee were unwarranted and that he was continued they were for the purpose of influencing adversely the primary vote in Michigan next Monday. The statement follows:

"I am convinced that Senator Borah's attack at this time is for the purpose of influencing adversely the primary vote in Michigan next Monday, April 6. A similar attack was reported in the press a few days before the South Dakota primary and was used throughout the state. I believe, for a similar purpose."

"Those who are in charge of my campaign stand ready to answer all proper inquiries concerning expenditures. Senator Borah's attack is entirely unwarranted."

Great Rail Manager Falls Dead.

NICHOLITA, Kan., March 29.—Nicholas J. O'Brien, general manager of the Texas and Pacific Railroad, fell dead here yesterday while attending mass.

ONE MAN KILLED, SIX PERSONS HURT BY 68-MILE WIND

Gal-Sweet - Louis From Early Morning to Midnight Sunday, Doing Heavy Property Damage.

OKLAHOMAN'S SKULL CRUSHED BY BRICK

Lambert Hellings, 23, Struck by Falling Cornice at Grand and Franklin, Dies Before Reaching Hospital.

By the Associated Press.

One man was killed, six persons were injured and property valued at several thousand dollars was damaged in a windstorm which swept St. Louis yesterday from early morning until midnight. The wind was from the Southwest and at two periods—10:30 a. m. and 3:30 p. m.—reached a maximum velocity of 68 miles an hour with a pressure of 25.12 pounds per square foot.

Between 10:30 a. m. and 3:30 p. m. the gale continuously maintained an average velocity of 60 miles an hour, and at no time during the day did it slow down to the normal minimum of 10 miles an hour. In the afternoon the maximum velocity continued for a period of five minutes.

A drizzling rain and a severe drop in temperature accompanied the wind last night. The temperature at 4 p. m. was 71 degrees and at 8 o'clock it had dropped to 59. The rain fell about 3 p. m.

Large Area Storm Swept.

The windstorm covered the entire country between the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains and the Appalachian Mountains. It began at a. m., the center at that time extending from Omaha, Neb., to Sioux City, Ia., and moved by way of Memphis, Tenn., through the Mississippi Valley to the southern part of the lake region.

A feature of the storm was that it was accompanied by very little rain, although heavy fall had been predicted. The heaviest rain was around Minnesota.

Lambert Hellings, 23 years old, of 2144 West Sixth street, Oklahoma City, Ok., visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Hellings, of 1221A Whittier street, was knocked unconscious by a brick when a section of coping on the roof of the two-story Fidelity Building, southeast corner of Franklin and Grand avenues, was blown down at 3:20 p. m., the wind having attained its maximum velocity at that time. He was dead when he reached Mullanphy Hospital in an ambulance. His skull having been crushed.

Man, 62, Swept From Feet.

John Hasted, 62 years old, of 6918 Maple avenue, was swept from his feet by the wind as he was crossing the yard of the United Railway barn at Fifteenth and State streets. He was cut and bruised on the face and hands.

Dr. George Horman, 60 years old, residing at the Warwick Hotel, stumbled over a sign board which was blown down on Locust street, between Fifteenth and State streets, and was cut on the back of the right hand.

Leader Broadway, 21 years old, of 2811 North Tenth street, was hit on the head by a branch of a tree that was blown down at Eleventh and Madison streets. He was cut and bruised.

Plate Glass Is Blown In.

Other plate-glass shop windows destroyed included two at the store of the W. L. Douglas Shoe Co., 419 Olive street, valued at $1500; one belonging to the Grinnell and Gory Furniture Co., 704 Washington avenue, $700; four at the women's apparel shop of Henry A. Weil, 916 Olive street, valued at $1500, $500, $500 and $700, respectively, at the stores of the Hub Furniture Co., 341 Washington avenue; Bestner Furniture Co., 721 Washington avenue; and the Globe Supply Co., 225 North Seventh street.

The car brick wall of the three-story vacant house at 1208 Clark avenue tumbled over on the roof of a two-story house occupied by a family at 1266 Clark avenue. Both houses were damaged about $1500. No one was hurt.

AFFLICTED ON CHAIRS AND STRETCHERS AT HICKSON'S MISSION

JAMES MOORE HICKSON.

SUPREME COURT HEARS DRY LAW ARGUMENTS

New Jersey Attorney-General Asserts One State Cannot Impair Wishes of Others.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—The Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution, known as the prohibition amendment, is legislative in nature and revolutionary in character, according to Attorney-General Thomas F. McLean of New Jersey, in opening his argument before the United States Supreme Court in New Jersey's suit to have the amendment declared void and the Volstead act unconstitutional. Eight points were raised and discussed in the arguments.

Attorney-General McLean's brief declared that the Eighteenth Amendment was not constitutionally proposed; that the proposal is subject to judicial review; that Congress did not by two-thirds in numbers of both houses affirmatively vote for the proposal of the resolution; that three-fourths of the states have not ratified in the constitutional sense.

The brief also declared that the national prohibition act is not appropriate legislation; that there is no right in Congress to legislate outside the words of the amendment; that the words "beverage purposes" sufficiently describe the limit within which Congress will legislate for the purpose of the "interlocking liquor" in its own definition; that the Volstead law fixing the standard is oppressive and unconstitutional; that the right of federal police is a right of the people of New Jersey over which the people of the United States have no control, this right may not be taken from them without their consent.

At the conclusion of the prohibition arguments today the Supreme Court will recess until April 19, instead of April 12, as previously announced.

MORE THAN 800 PRESENT SELVES FOR LAYING ON OF HANDS AT CHURCH

Meeting at St. Peter's Church Continues in Afternoon After Treatment of Church-full at First Session.

WOMAN AND GIRL GIVE UP CRUTCHES

Former Says She Had Been Unable to Walk Without Them for Three Years—Other Incidents.

The Christian Healing Mission, conducted by James Moore Hickson, lay healer of the Church of England, in St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Lindell boulevard and Spring avenue, continued this afternoon, after a churchful of the sick and afflicted had been treated at the regular service beginning at 10 a. m.

Hickson's work of laying on of hands was concluded at 1:10 p. m. for the first congregation, which had filled the church, having a capacity of 700 to 800 persons. At that time, 200 or more were waiting in the chapel in the parish house, and Hickson, at 2:30 o'clock, began laying his hands on them and about 400 others who came later, after he had taken lunch in the rectory next door.

The first morning's congregation consisted of the holders of tickets, issued in advance, numbered from 1 to 300. The later gathering was made up of persons without tickets. Tomorrow morning the second 300 ticket holders will be treated, and Wednesday morning the third group of 300. Hickson plans to depart for Chicago Wednesday night.

Occurrences within the first two hours of the mission, caused the Episcopal clergymen assisting in the mission to believe that the practice of spiritual healing, believed to have existed in the early Christian church, had indeed been revived in Hickson's ministrations.

Woman Throws Away Crutches.

Mrs. Marie Blatter, 55 years old, of 7233 Flora avenue, Maplewood, went to the altar on crutches. She went away, after having received the rite of prayer, without her crutches, but leaning on the arm of a younger woman who accompanied her. She said she had for three years been unable to walk without crutches.

When her friends urged her, on the way out, to sit down and rest, she exclaimed, "I am not tired. I am not lame any more." She said she did not desire the crutches any longer, but her friend carried the crutches as she started home with Mrs. Blatter in an automobile.

Mrs. Ella Dwyer of 1165A North Vandeventer avenue, who had come for treatment for blindness in her left eye, declared to Thomas E. Powe, chief of the ushers, that she was able to see the light, with that eye, for the first time in two years. This improvement came, she said, while she was kneeling in a pew and listening to Hickson's blessings on others, and before she herself had gone to the altar rail. She later said, at her home, that she could still see light with the left eye.

A case reported to the Rev. Rufus Putney, rector of St. Philip's Church, Union boulevard and Maple avenue, by one of his parishioners, was that of a 16-year-old girl who, the parishioner said, had not been able to walk without crutches, and who, after minister's informant said, went from the church without the crutches. The minister did not learn the girl's name.

When Hickson appeared before the altar at 10 o'clock, the church had been full for a half hour. A mission of ticket-holders having begun at 9.

Many Seek for Healing.

In the seats nearest the altar rail were the most infirm and the most feeble of the seekers for healing. There were children in their mothers' laps, children who had never walked. There were men and women, trembling with pain. There were the sufferers from deformities, seemingly of hopeless character. The dwarfed and the hunched. It was a gathering such as has often been seen at the old world fairs.

TORNADO DOES HEAVY DAMAGE IN CHICAGO SUBURBS; 6 STATES HIT

Four Women in List of Eight Persons Killed at Elgin Lost Lives at Churches—About 90 Dead Reported From South, With Property Loss Estimated at Millions.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, March 29.—With wire communication gradually being restored with the various sections of the Middle West states which were swept by the tornado yesterday, the known dead, at noon today, was placed at 93. Late reports from Ohio indicated 26 lives were lost, while Indiana reported 27 and Michigan nine. Southern reports may increase the total to above 100.

The Chicago district, with 23 deaths, was the heaviest sufferer, according to reports early today. The known death list included:

West Liberty, Ind., seven; Ponton, Mich., seven; Zulu, Ind., five; Nashville, O., four; Greenville, O., four; Geneva, Ind., three, and one each at Monroeville, Ind., Townley, Ind., Hart, Mich., and East Trou, Wis. Ohio reports 24 known dead, and Indiana 17, with a probable toll of 27.

Service Men Volunteer.
Thousands of persons were made homeless by destruction of dwellings throughout the six states and outside relief was necessary for a number of places.

Elgin, Ill., 30 miles west of Chicago, where eight persons were killed, suffered damage estimated at $4,000,000 when the tornado wrecked a large part of the business quarter and part of the residence section.

From Elgin the tornado swept northeastward around Chicago, smashing through Melrose Park, Evanston, Wilmette and other suburbs with a trail of wreckage and deaths. At Melrose Park and Wilmette the further added to have. Soldiers of a National Guard regiment which was called out when the extent of the damage became known also assumed control at Melrose Park and Wilmette.

Michigan Cities Isolated.
A dozen or more Michigan cities were cut off from the rest of the world and it was reported they were in the path of the tornado which swept northeastward across the state from Lake Michigan. The storm was said to have been particularly severe in the vicinity of Kalamazoo, Battle Creek, Lansing, Bay City and Saginaw.

In Ohio and Indiana, however, the tornado's fury apparently was wreaked on rural districts, none of the large cities was hit, according to reports. Sweeping over the open country and semi-isolated districts it was believed a number of persons had been killed and much property damaged.

Three persons are expected to die, 14 are seriously injured and property damage will total half a million dollars as a result of the storm west of Joliet.

MELROSE PARK AND WILMETTE IN PATH OF THE TORNADO

CHICAGO, March 29.—More than a dozen persons were killed and probably a hundred injured by a tornado that hit west of Chicago and damaged some of the city's northwestern suburbs. The property damage is heavy, including the demolition of many buildings and raising of telegraph and telephone lines.

The known dead at Melrose Park are: William Selk, Philip King, Fred Pippinger, Antoinette Lesanski, Mr. and Mrs. William Teckmeyer, August Swanson.

At Dunning: Mrs. H. Hansen, Edward Jameson, Alfred H. Hane, Elizabeth Laufenderger.

A score of houses in Evanston, a northern suburb, were demolished and a number of persons were injured, but no fatalities were reported. Roads were carried from houses and trees were uprooted and carried a half block in some instances.

The damage in Wilmette, a northern suburb, was estimated at $100,000. Many buildings in the business quarter were damaged along with the town hall and the Episcopal Church. The storm tore a path 200 yards wide through the main part of Wilmette.

A path blown from the Sacred Heart Academy at Melrose Park penetrated a tree seven inches in diameter 300 feet away.

The Evanston golf course was strewn with clothing and portable garages from Wilmette, and trees in Wilmette, which escaped the storm, were filled with Wilmette lumber.

Property loss running into the hundreds of thousands of dollars was caused in Evanston, Wilmette and other North Shore suburbs, while Melrose Park, Maywood, Edgewater, Newwood Park and other villages west of Chicago were damaged. No fatalities were reported from there, but many were injured.

In 175 houses leveled. In 10 minutes 175 houses in the Evanston district were leveled and 400 were damaged.

The wind tore into the business district of Melrose Park, ripping

FRANCE BUYS PATENT ON CANNON SHOOTING 100 TO 120 MILES

British Seek Permission to Use Same Plans—Belgium Builds Similar Gun.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, March 29.—Delamare, a French inventor, Saturday sold to the French Government the patent of a new long-range gun, which, after thorough tests, has shown it has a range of from 100 to 120 miles. The shell leaves the muzzle of this gun at a speed of approximately 4175 feet per second.

Premier Lloyd George recently told the British Parliament recently that England had been negotiating with France to secure the right to use the plans for the new gun, and the Belgian Government is now manufacturing similar cannons at Liege. American military attaches in Europe have written to the Government asking that American representatives may be present at tests of the weapon.

In connection with the development of this piece of ordnance which is called "the turbo cannon," it may be recalled that two years ago last Tuesday the Germans began their bombardment of the British coast with a "big Bertha," the shells falling in the city as if from another planet. This bombardment was one of the sensational developments of the great March drive of the German army against the British and French on the Picardy front.

killed and dozens were injured. A half dozen men and women were waiting in the vestibule of the Congressional Church and a number of children in the Sunday school room. The steeple of the church collapsed and the mass of wreckage fell on the group beneath.

The pastor, the Rev. J. Wallace Walsh, had gone to the Sunday school room to calm the children, who had become hysterical during the rainstorm. He had succeeded in calming them, when the roof of the room crashed down, killing the McCannish girl and killing a number of others. The Rev. Mr. Walsh was bruised and scratched, but was able to help rescue the injured children.

26 DEAD, HUNDREDS HURT IN STORM IN WESTERN OHIO

By the Associated Press.
COLUMBUS, O., March 29.—Casualties resulting from the storm which swept western Ohio yesterday afternoon and last night totaled 26 dead and probably several hundred injured, according to information available at 10:30 a. m. today. The property damage will run into millions of dollars, it is said.

Twenty dead have been reported in the vicinity of Toledo, several villages in that community having been destroyed. The villages of Republic and Brimley, near Toledo, are total wrecks, fire consuming the wreckage in the former. Six are dead in these two villages. Three are dead at Van Wert; three at Maumet, four at Toledo, one at Lima, four at Nashville and Greenville and one at Cleveland, three at Raab's Corners and two at Genoa.

Only meager reports have been received from villages in the Toledo territory, as practically all communication is cut off.

TOWER GROVE AND 4TH STREET CAR LINES TO CHANGE ROUTES

Former Will Go West From Downtown on Fourth Street Route; Fourth to Cover Tower Grove Route West.

Authority today was granted by the Missouri Public Service Commission for the United Railways receiver to begin next Sunday to operate the Tower Grove and Fourth street lines in a fashion that will make both routes virtually belt lines.

The Fourth street line now loops on Franklin avenue and the Tower Grove line on Lucas avenue. The new route of the Fourth street cars, starting at Fourth and Pine streets, will be westward over the Tower Grove line to Grand avenue and Arsenal street and return eastward over their present route to Fourth and Pine streets, where the trip westward will be begun.

The Tower Grove line on the westward trip will go south on Franklin and Pine streets on Fourth street following the Fourth street route to Grand avenue and Arsenal street, as they now do, to Clifton Heights. Eastward the Tower Grove cars will follow their present route.

The principal purpose of these reroutings is to eliminate the y-junction at Grand avenue and Arsenal street.

DEMOCRATS AGREE THEY CAN'T SAVE REED AT JOPLIN

Leaders at Party Conference Here Convinced Any Effort to Prevent His Repudiation Would Be Fruitless.

Democratic State leaders, at a conference at the Planters Hotel today, heard reports from each other on the sentiment of their communities regarding United States Senator Reed, and, according to information from a reliable source, an agreement was reached that even if they so desired they would be unable to prevent humiliation of Reed by the Democratic State Convention in Joplin April 22.

The conference was called to consider party affairs generally and particularly the platform to be adopted at Joplin with the Reed matter as the most important in mind.

Those attending were Ben M. Neale of Clinton, chairman of the State Committee; Senator Sam B. Cook of Jefferson City; W. R. Hollister of Jefferson City, executive secretary of the Democratic National Committee; Judge John S. Farrington of the Springfield Court of Appeals; William T. Kemper, a Kansas City banker, and Charles M. Hay and Daniel G. Taylor of St. Louis. Those invited who were unable to attend were Tom Fendegast, Democratic factional boss in Kansas City and leading supporter of Senator Reed; the Rev. Dr. Burris Jenkins, editor of the Kansas City Post; Floyd Jacobs, a Kansas City lawyer, and Peyton A. Parks, a lawyer of Clinton.

The conference continued for three hours, the greater part of the time being given to a consideration of Reed. It was reported by several of those present that while they had had no direct word from Reed, they understood from friends of Reed that before the date of the convention, he would announce that he did not desire election as a delegate to the national convention.

Of those present to doubt the accuracy of the rumor, pointing to the attempt of the Reed men to control the Buchanan County convention Saturday as an indication he intended to make a fight at Joplin. The action of the many county conventions which have instructed delegates against Reed was canvassed, and there was almost no dissent when, one after another those in the conference said that from the temper of Democrats in their communities they were convinced any attempt to prevent repudiation of Reed would be fruitless.

It was decided that the platform should contain a strong plank in favor of houses for former service men, and also a plank opposing universal military training. Another plank agreed upon was in favor of higher salaries for school teachers, though the conference did not go so far as to discuss the method of supplying the extra funds needed for the increased salaries.

Those in the conference were reluctant to discuss the matters considered, and none would be quoted. Chairman Neale said he called the meeting to discuss party affairs generally and that there was no particular matter demanding consideration.

PLAN PRESENTED FOR ENDING OF TREATY DEADLOCK

Samuel Colcord, Representing No Party or Faction, Proposes That All Points Agreed On Be Adopted.

By DAVID LAWRENCE, A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—Samuel Colcord, a modest old gentleman with kindly eyes and benign countenance, who represents no organization, no political faction or party, no personal ambition or desire for prominence, has presented to President Wilson, through Secretary Tumulty, a plan for the ending of the deadlock on the treaty instead of an appeal from the President to the people in an election.

Mr. Colcord brings an appeal from the people to the President. He urges briefly that there be an adoption of the peace treaty with all the points on which there is agreement between the Democratic and Republican Senators, and that only the disputed points be left to the campaign or a referendum.

His idea is that much of the good of the league of nations and treaty can immediately be derived by the United States in partnership with all walks of life. To give the points like article 10 on which hypothetical and not concrete obstacles have arisen can be determined later on.

No Organization in Plan.
They may take their referendum if they will, writes Mr. Colcord, but not while the world waits in suspense and agony for the pledges of aid. We are willing to give signers of the treaty from all political parties and all walks of life. To give the points like article 10 on which hypothetical and not concrete obstacles have arisen can be determined later on.

Mr. Colcord has no office, no staff, no publicity organization, nothing at all. He is just an average citizen who feels so deeply about the subject in entering the league of nations and putting the treaty of peace into effective operation that he has devoted all his time for many weeks and is prepared to continue his efforts indefinitely in order to bring about a situation in which he thinks only disinterested men can help.

Cardinal's Name on Petition.
On the petition appear the names of President Lowell of Harvard and Cardinal Gibbons. Then there is Cleveland H. Dodge, Princeton classmate and intimate friend of President Wilson. Also George W. Wickes, former Attorney-General in the Taft Cabinet; Augustus Thomas, playwright; Hamilton Holt, editor of the Independent, who have been in civic affairs, have joined in the memorial. Accompanying Mr. Colcord to the White House were Hamilton Holt and Prof. Woodbridge of Boston.

Of course, anybody who has dared to make a suggestion to the White House has had to tread softly and speak in whispers, for the President has brooked no such suggestions. Indeed, it has been said that he would not receive certain Democratic Senators, who have been the friendliest terms with him because he learned in advance they wanted to talk compromise.

Mr. Wilson did not see Mr. Colcord or his committee, but the memorial they presented will, of course, be laid before the President by his private secretary. Every day it is planned to add more names so that eventually thousands of persons whose names command public respect will be enlisted in the movement.

Colcord Not a Partisan.
Mr. Colcord admits he is a Republican, but claims he is no partisan. He is the kind of a man who believes much can be accomplished in the treaty situation if the individuals interested turned their thoughts from personal hatreds to broad principles of human compassion. He plans to carry his appeal to the Senate, too. He has already interviewed several Senators who favor the compromise plan and it is probable that there will be speeches on it this week.

The President has not seen fit to reply to the Senate resolution returning the treaty to him. Sometimes he is welcomed on occasion to speak indirectly and by implication the visit of Mr. Colcord and his committee may furnish that opportunity. Some pronouncement from the White House has been expected for several days, but it has been deferred to see what Congress would do about the joint resolution proposing a declaration of peace.

It is still a game, each side watching the other and each side confident that the public supports such tactics. Mr. Colcord's efforts are the beginning of what may yet prove a nationwide movement to tell both sides in the treaty fight that the country still wants action, not delay, and definition of American foreign policy.

IN HEART OF RUHR SOVIET

Essen has become the heart and soul of the Ruhr Soviet movement. It is the most thoroughly controlled city of the district, and the Red army centers there, as well as the Central Committee and the conferences of the various executive committees.

In the city hall the main officials have taken up their headquarters, where drift in Red army recruits, widows of fallen Reds and long, ragged streams of ill-assorted, beat-up-looking men, nearly all with rifles and heavily charged cartridge cases. All of them seem quiet and respectful except an occasional belligerent person, such as a young truck driver Captain who wanted to requisition clothing. When he was refused the necessary authority he declared: "I wish I had my company here. I'd shoot up the whole lot of you."

The revolutionary tribunal, of which little is said, is officially reported to have effected its first execution, that of an alleged forger. As one arrives at the city hall there can be seen in the field, and inside all corners get an excellent view of two wooden coffin ends.

RECALL OF GOVERNOR OF INDIA DEMANDED

Special Commission, in Report on Disturbances in Punjab, Says Chelmsford Is Incapable.

By the Associated Press.
DELHI, India, March 29.—The special commission appointed by the National Congress to inquire into the recent disturbances in the Punjab has published its report. It says that the commission finds Baron Chelmsford, Viceroy and Governor-General of India, incapable of holding his high office and demands his recall.

The report declares that no conspiracy designed to overthrow the British Government has been proved. It finds that other incidents, named in the report as the Satyagraha and Rowlatt incidents, were not anti-British, and that the facts did not justify the proclamation of martial law in connection with them.

The Amritsar affair, in which a slaughter occurred when a crowd of natives was fired upon last April, is described in the report as a calculated piece of inhumanity unparalleled in ferocity.

The report demands that Sir Michael O'Dwyer, British Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab, General Dyer, Commander of the British troops in India, two Colonels, Deputy Commissioner Smith, and two Indians named shall be relieved of their offices. The repeal of what are known as the Rowlatt acts and the punishment of certain minor Indian officials also are demanded.

TWO AUTOS HIT BY TRAINS; WOMAN AND MAN KILLED

Woman Jumps From Machine to Avoid Being Struck at Granite City, but Lands on Tracks.

By the Associated Press.
GRANITE CITY, Mo., March 29.—There were two accidents in which automobiles were hit by trains on the East Side yesterday, a woman being killed in one and a man dying from injuries received in the other. In addition, four women and three men received minor injuries.

Mrs. Martha Allen Murray, 32 years old, wife of Albert Murray of Alton, and the mother of four daughters, was riding in an automobile with four other women, when, at the Venice railroad crossing in Granite City, at 2:15 p. m., the automobile got in the way of a Terminal accommodation train, carrying workmen. In an endeavor to avoid being hit, Mrs. Murray jumped from the machine, alighting on the tracks directly in front of the train. She was killed. The train hit the automobile, but the women who remained inside were only slightly hurt.

Man Injured Fatally.
Edward Roegerheimer, 35 years old, of Swansea, a suburb of Belleville, was with three men in an automobile which was hit by an Alton & Southern freight train at Forty-second and State streets, East St. Louis at 11 p. m. He was thrown under the engine, and his legs amputated. He died at 8:15 a. m. today in St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis.

Samuel White, 45, of 1717 West Main street, Belleville, driver of the machine, suffered cuts and lacerations, and is in the hospital. Louis Ruff, 24, of 504 North Sixteenth street, Belleville, and John Flack, down.

The Cold That Hangs On

This is No. 5 of a series of advertisements, prepared by a competent physician, explaining how colds, coughs, croup, whooping cough, influenza, pneumonia, measles, and other diseases attack the air passages—such as the throat, larynx, and bronchial tubes—just like a sore in inflammation of the skin. An inflammation of the skin is an inflammation of the skin. A cold that hangs on, therefore, is simply nature's "red flag" indicating that there is "trouble below," and this warning should never be neglected.

Nightly applications of Vick's VapoRub will aid nature to clear up that inflammation. Because Vick's acts locally by stimulation thru the skin to draw out the inflammation, attract the blood away from the congested spots and relieve the cough. In addition, the medicinal ingredients of Vick's are vaporized by the body heat. These vapors are breathed in all night long, thus bringing the medication to bear directly upon the inflamed areas.

Vicks should be rubbed in over the throat and chest until the skin is red—then spread on thickly and covered with hot flannel cloths. Leave the clothing loose around the neck and the bed clothes arranged in the form of a funnel so the vapors arising may be freely inhaled. If the cough is annoying, swallow a small bit of Vick's the size of a pea.

BRODERICK GIRL ON TRIAL FOR KILLING OF STEPFATHER

16-Year-Old Girl, Who Also Shot and Killed Father, to Plead That She Was Attacked.

CASE BEING HEARD IN JUVENILE COURT

Penalty on Conviction May Be Imprisonment in the Penitentiary for Life—Jurors Are Questioned.

Ursula Broderick, 16 years old, who in less than three years successively shot and killed her father and her stepfather, was placed on trial in the juvenile court this morning on a charge of first degree murder, for the killing of her stepfather, Joseph Woodcock. The trial will be before a jury, and the maximum penalty which she may receive is life imprisonment.

The venire of 47 men, from which the jury will be drawn, was completed soon after noon, and court took a recess until 11 a. m. Wednesday, to give the attorneys time to prepare challenges. Questions asked the prospective jurors by Assistant Circuit Attorney Reeder indicated the State will try to show that Woodcock was shot while asleep. The girl claims she shot him in defense of her honor. They lived at that time (April 14, 1919) at 5042 Wells avenue. The present address of Ursula and her mother is 5017 Delmar boulevard.

It was on Oct. 16, 1916, that she shot and killed her father, Thomas P. Broderick. On her testimony, and that of her mother, that she fired in defense of her mother, whom Broderick was beating, a Coroner's jury exonerated her of blame.

Woman in Appearance. Prior to the trial, on occasions when she appeared in court in connection with the two cases, her dress has been that of a child. Today, however, she wore a spring hat of blue straw, wide-brimmed and trimmed with ostrich plumes and pink tulle, and a dress of black silk stockings, and a tan coat of three-quarter length. Her clothing was practically that of a young woman.

In the audience was her mother, Mrs. Lillian Woodcock, jointly charged with murder, but whose case will be tried separately, later. The mother, both of whose husbands have been slain by her daughter, has upheld the daughter's claim that the first victim was called today was Lathrop H. Bailey, 5660 Kingsbury place, assistant auditor of the Federal Reserve Bank.

"Would you vote for conviction if it was shown that this girl shot Woodcock while he was sleeping?" asked Reeder. Bailey said he would. "Would her age influence your verdict?" Bailey replied that it would to some extent, but would not prevent him from upholding the law. Another question he replied that the fact of the defendant being a woman made no difference to him.

Story of Shooting. The story of the shooting told by Ursula was that she had been occupying the room in which her mother and stepfather slept, and because of his advances, she obtained a revolver with the intention of killing herself. On the morning of April 14, after her mother had arisen and left the room, Woodcock picked her (Ursula) up and carried her over to his bed. Then she fired with the revolver, which she had hidden in her wrapper, she said. Woodcock was found dead in bed. He had been shot twice over the right eye and once in the back of the head.

Body Found in River Identified. PEORIA, Ill., March 29.—The body of the young woman found in the Illinois River Saturday night was identified last night as that of Miss Lily Dibble, a visitor from the East who disappeared several days ago. When found it was thought the body might be that of Miss Jeanne Adams of Hull House, Chicago, who disappeared last December.

SNOWSTORM SWEEPS KANSAS

Eager Crowds at St. Peter's Church This Morning Awaiting Admission to Healer Hickson's Meeting

Hickson Tells of Healing by Laying On of Hands

Began at 14, He Says, When Cousin Got Relief From Neuralgia Pain—"I Never Have Gone Beyond That," He Says.

James Moore Hickson, lay healer of the Church of England, who is conducting the Christian Healing Mission at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Lindell boulevard and Spring avenue, yesterday, after his arrival from Kansas City, talked with reporters in the home, adjoining the church, of the Rev. Dr. Z. B. T. Phillips, rector.

Afterwards, Mr. Phillips, rector, of the church, was photographed in the yard and then said to the photographers and reporters: "Let's go into the church and pray. You are all a part of this work."

The newspaper workers followed Hickson to the church altar, and knelt while he prayed for the success of the mission, and for the right use of the agencies of publicity in connection with the work. Dr. Phillips gave the benediction. A number of persons who had come early for the vesper service witnessed the impromptu prayer meeting. Commenting on the incident in the pulpit an hour later, Dr. Phillips said:

"It was the sort of thing that I think the Savior would have done, if He had been in Mr. Hickson's place."

How He Came to Practice. Hickson is a strongly built, square-set Englishman, who dresses plainly, and whose appearance is in no way ecclesiastical. He might be taken for a contractor, or a laborer, or a member of Parliament.

In the interview, Hickson told how he came to practice the work of healing.

"I had a wonderful mother," he said. "She taught us children to pray. I do not remember a time when I did not pray about everything."

"Mother used to tell us about the Lord's work of healing. One night, when I was 14 years old, my cousin complained of an ache, caused by neuralgia in her face, and I felt that I must put my hands on her. As I laid my hands on her, the Lord's healing power came into me. The pain left her. Soon afterwards, I treated another cousin, the first girl's sister, who suffered from St. Vitus' dance, and again the efforts were successful."

"My mother said, 'James, this is a gift of God. We must pray that you may be guided in using it.'"

"Well, I have not gone beyond that point since. Whatever gift of healing is displayed through me is the gift of God, and I pray, and ask others to pray, that I may be guided in the right use of it. Our Lord is the doctor; he uses me as his channel."

"I don't wish to speak of specific cases, as a rule," he said in reply to questions. "But there is one recent instance which I am free to mention. A physician in California, whose wife had been blind for many years, wrote me recently that the wife regained her sight after receiving treatment through me, and that she saw her daughter for the first time."

He was asked whether, in cases where tissues had suffered atrophy, he would encourage anyone to expect restoration through spiritual healing.

"At one time," he said, "I might have said that I would not expect to see such a case helped; but in England, through Archdeacon Gries, I was invited to visit a young woman who for 15 years had been unable to see. Her body atrophy must have occurred in her case. She could move only her hands and her head. Her improvement was instantaneous; that night she turned over in bed, and the next day she sat up. She had earned her living since that time."

Hickson was asked whether faith and repentance are necessary conditions for his work.

"It is no use to care for the body alone," he replied. "The message, 'Thy sins are forgiven thee,' and the message, 'Arise and walk,' go together, as they did in the Savior's time. We must not assume to try God. We are on trial, not God. People should understand that they are not faith simmer down as you leave the church.

Urges Faith in God. "We believe in the ministry of medicine, and in healing by the physician's skill, but we must not limit God by what we know of medical science. If he were so limited, there would be little hope for many of you."

"All this suffering is not error of mortal mind. Christ came to heal, not to tell us that sickness was a delusion. If there is no sin, then there is no need of a Savior, and His message to us was false. 'If we say we have no sin, we deceive ourselves. If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us.'"

"Healing is the cleansing and purifying of body, mind and soul. If you have sought against anyone, forgive that person now. Your own heart must be right, or this gift will not touch you, but will pass off like water from a duck's back."

"Christ is the only source of health and salvation. I have never healed anyone. It is only because I know that the Lord is present in this work, that I dare to lay hands upon any of you."

Hickson Calm and Unhurried. As Hickson spoke, and as he later ministered to the afflicted, his manner was calm and unhurried. He knelt at the altar rail with the clergy, before his discourse, and joined in the responses to prayers offered by Dr. Phillips. Bishop Tuttle, sitting at the left of the altar, then placed his hands on Hickson's head and prayed for the Divine blessing on his work.

Hickson then announced that he would lay hands first on those on stretchers and in wheel chairs, and then on children, so that their parents might take them home. Hickson's ministrations to each patient, whether at the altar or in the church aisle, consisted of placing his hands upon the patient's head and offering a brief prayer. This prayer was not a set form, and seemed to be different in almost every case, though several phrases recurred. "Rebuke, O God, this spirit of infirmity," was one of his petitions.

"O Lord," he prayed in some cases. "I lay my hands on this suffering one. Relieve her, and may her healing begin from this hour."

The patients, who knelt for the laying on of hands, remained kneeling for the benediction, which was given to each by various members of the clergy. Coadjutor Bishop Johnson, the Rev. Dr. Z. B. T. Phillips, rector of St. Peter's; the Rev. Dr. E. S. Travers of Pittsburgh and Dean Davis of Christ Church Cathedral were among those who laid their hands on the heads of the sufferers and prayed for their restoration.

"Silence" was the admonition of placards in the church, and this was observed by adults to a remarkable degree. The cries of children were heard frequently, but for much of the time the principal sound was the low playing of the organ, in variations of familiar church tunes, and the subdued voices of Hickson and the clergy in their prayers over the seekers for healing.

When a child was accompanied at the altar by a parent, Hickson would lay his hands on the head of both, and would pray first for "this mother (or father) and this dear child," and would then place both hands upon the child's head, praying for the child's restoration.

Preliminary Remarks. In his preliminary discourse to the congregation, delivered in a clear and powerful voice, Hickson urged his hearers to be free from any spirit of selfishness, and not to crowd to the front. "I will lay hands on all of you," he said, "if God gives me the strength. If you come in a spirit of selfishness, you lose the blessing you are seeking. Forget your own trouble and pray for the person next to you."

"God can heal you all at once," he said. "He can convert you all at once. But have you the faith to receive it? How much preparation have you had? The healing is gradual, like conversion. It is a growth of the seed sown here. There were people whom our Lord could not heal, because of their unbelief."

"Instantaneous healing comes sometimes, but it is exceptional. Believe that the Lord is going to begin a great work among you today. Don't let it stop. Don't let the devil put discouragement in your heart. Don't feel discouraged if you have to leave on your crutches. Don't let your entrance to the church. Turning to those nearest him, he asked them to "have faith" and went on into the church.

The doors were opened 10 minutes before 9 o'clock. Ushers appeared from within the church and escorted those persons using crutches or canes from their places in line into the church ahead of those who were not visibly afflicted. About 150 of these more apparent sufferers were taken into the church and given places where it would be certain that Hickson would interview them.

The organ began playing hymns at 20 minutes before 10 and two sets of candles on the altar were lighted. Hickson entered the chancel with the rector, Dr. Z. B. T. Phillips, at 8 minutes after 10.

Dr. Phillips said: "Let us all remember we are in the house of God, and here to pray. I want everyone to pray. Open up your hearts and let the spirit of God enter in."

He then called attention that no offering would be taken but that there were offering boxes in the parish house and whatever contributions were offered would enable Hickson to continue on his mission into the Holy Land, India and the Orient.

The congregation then sang "My Faith Looks Up to Thee" and recited the Lord's Prayer.

Bishop Tuttle Present. The venerable Bishop Tuttle, who has long suffered from deafness, followed by Bishop Coadjutor Johnson, approached Hickson and placing his hands above Hickson's head, Bishop Tuttle said:

"God bless you and be with you in heart, mind and soul. May He give you spiritual strength that you may lay hands on the people and relieve their afflictions, through Jesus Christ, Our Lord, Amen."

As he finished Bishop Tuttle laid his hands on Hickson's head.

Hickson arose, faced the congregation and gave instructions on how to receive the ministrations. When he finished, he went to persons on stretchers in an ante room in the rear of the church and began his laying on of hands.

Thomas Powe, director of St. Peter's Chapter of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, was head usher, and ushers were W. P. Samuel, treasurer; J. S. Wishart, secretary, and Harold H. Bell, chairman of the local assembly of the brotherhood, and the members of St. Peter's vestry, as follows: J. L. Ford, Walker Hill, Charles J. Miller, J. E. Williams, Joseph R. Barroll, H. E. Bridge, A. C. Garrison, C. D. Blake, E. H. Boehnken, John G. Lonsdale, H. J. Pettengill, V. L. Price and S. B. Sheldon.

First Arrival at Church at 8 a. m. Persons began to gather about the church and form into lines before the three entrances before 8 o'clock and at 8:30 about 100 had assembled. A sergeant of police and eight patrolmen were on duty.

Among the first arrivals were two young men and a young man escorting a woman about 75 years old in an invalid's chair. She appeared to be suffering and ushers took her to the altar and carried her into the church. Near the front of the line was a little girl about seven years old, who walked with crutches. Many blind were in the gathering.

An elderly woman, smartly dressed in a gray silk suit and wearing an instrument for the aid of hearing, was an early arrival. One man who came said that he had suffered from rheumatism for 36 years.

The Rev. Henry W. Mizner of St. Stephen's Mission, 520 Rutger street, paused as he came to the had gone to the mission and which she said, she had used continuously for three years.

Mrs. Blatter's home is a second floor flat. She said that upon her return home from the mission she ascended four steps leading to the house from the street without assistance, a feat she had not been able to accomplish for three years. She said further that she ascended the 23 stairs leading to her home, relying upon the banister alone for assistance. She had not been able to do this for three years, she said.

Her daughter, Dorris, who admitted her to the house, said that she was greatly astonished to see her mother walking without crutches.

Says She Has Been Helped. Mrs. Blatter came from the kitchen of her home to the living room to see the reporter, using a cane. She said this also was a new accomplishment for her. She explained the cane, saying that her unused limbs were unaccustomed to the exercise she had given them since discarding her crutches and were tiring. She weighs about 200 pounds.

She made one other demonstration of improvement. She said that, once seated in a chair, even a straight-backed chair, she had been unable to arise without assistance, though each time she did arise she had tried to do so without aid. She said she sat down in a large leather rocking chair and then, with some effort and resting her hands on the arms of the chair, she arose and stood erect.

"I am not cured," she said, "but I am much improved and I now am confident that eventually I will be completely cured."

She said that she became afflicted with rheumatism five years ago and was compelled to go upon crutches three years ago.

Believes She Will Be Cured. "I have been very ambitious to be cured," she said, "and have made constant effort to that end. I have employed at intervals about different physicians. Some told me that my disease was chronic and incurable. They diagnosed it as muscular rheumatism. I have tried various baths in the city and outside the city. I have employed osteopaths, chiropractors and magnetic healers. Recently I took up Christian Science, but it was beyond my comprehension. However, have read the Bible religiously and have been helped."

"I have never until today noted the slightest improvement in my condition. I have faith now that I will get well."

To a Post-Dispatch reporter who saw her at her home Mrs. Blatter, Devan of 1102A North Vandeventer avenue, said she had been blind and on "since 1904. In that year and in 1910, she said, she was blinded in both eyes for three weeks and blindness in her left eye continued three months each time. For the past two years, she said, she had been blind in her left eye.

Tells of Seeing Light. "When I entered the church," she said, "the healer was saying: 'Love your enemies. Do not hate anyone. Do not want revenge.' I said to myself and to God: 'I love my enemies. I don't hate anybody. I don't want revenge.' Then I said: 'God, I am sick and suffering. God, in Jesus' name, restore my sight.' I put my hand to my right eye and looked with my left eye and I could see the light in the windows."

"The healer looked at me. 'Why are you crying?' he asked."

"I am crying because I can see," she said. "I have been confessing my sins to God."

Mrs. Devan said that she became so frightened in the St. Louis cyclone of 1916 that a tumor was produced. An operation was advised, but she refused. After 18 months she said, a woman healer prayed for her and in three days the tumor was gone. In 1916, she said, she had a catalepsy on each eye. She prayed all night. The next day, she said, she was better and in three days the cataracts were gone.

ST. LOUIS BREWERS APPEAL DISMISSAL OF BEER SUIT

Special to the Post-Dispatch. WASHINGTON, March 29.—The Supreme Court this afternoon granted leave to Charles A. Houts to file a brief in the appeal of the St. Louis Brewing Association from a decision of Judge Farris at St. Louis Saturday dismissing a case involving the validity of the prohibition amendment.

Earlier in the day Houts formally filed the appeal with the clerk of the court and the case was entered on the docket. Addressing the court Houts said there was no desire on the part of the appellants for an oral argument. He asked that he be permitted to file a brief today adding that this procedure was satisfactory to the Department of Justice which, if the permission was granted, would file its brief in reply by the end of the week. Houts moved that the case be regarded as submitted with the presentation of these briefs and he decided without oral argument. Chief Justice White assented to the motion.

WOMAN TELLS OF WALKING FIRST TIME IN 3 YEARS

Says She Ascended Steps at Home Without Crutches After Attending Mission.

A Post-Dispatch reporter this afternoon called at the home of Mrs. Marie Blatter, 55 years old, 7238 Flora avenue, Maplewood, who earlier in the day had walked from the Christian Healing Mission at St. Peter's Episcopal Church without the aid of the crutches on which she

CLARK HAS $50,000 FIRE
Four Stores and Masonic Hall Destroyed by Conflagration.
Special to the Post-Dispatch.
CLARK, Mo., March 20.—Fire of an unknown origin here yesterday morning caused a loss estimated at $50,000. The fire started in the L. B. Shields general merchandise store, spread into his hardware store, which was a two-story building, and then into the Masonic hall and P. B. Deigh's grocery under it, and on to the corner, which was a two-story structure occupied by Victor's drug store and doctors' offices.

At the time of the fire a heavy gale from the south endangered the entire business section.

THREE MEN LIE IN WAIT AND ROB COUPLE IN GARAGE

Watch and $273 Taken From J. P. Miles Jr. and Diamonds Valued at $1650 From His Wife.

GROCER ROBBED OF $745 AS STORE OPENS

Two Men Hold Up Market at 6:30 A. M.—Garment Firm Looted of Silks and Lingerie Valued at $4040.

Three men, with handkerchiefs over their faces, took $273 and a watch from James P. Miles Jr., son of Justice of the Peace Miles, and diamonds valued at $1650 from his wife, Mrs. Leah Miles, as they alighted from their automobile in a garage in the rear of 4944 Maple avenue, shortly after last midnight. The robbers apparently had been waiting for Miles, who runs a soft-drink saloon at Taylor and Easton avenue and resides at 1226 Aubert avenue.

They told Miles and his wife to stand against the wall of the garage and instructed them not to cry out after their departure. A platinum bar pin set with 15 diamonds was valued by Mrs. Miles at $900. Three diamond rings taken were valued at $750. The robbers also took Mrs. Miles' wedding ring.

Two men with revolvers entered the grocery and meat market of Meyer Berg, 4100 Fairfax avenue, today at 6:30 a. m. as Berg was opening the place, and took $745, which Berg had put in a cash box in the cash register, preparatory to taking it to a bank. The money was the Saturday receipts of his business. Berg ran after the men and fired five shots, but they escaped.

Clothing Valued at $4040 Stolen.

Burglars stole georgette waists and silk dresses and lingerie valued at $4040 from the Richter Garment Co., 1266 South Broadway, between closing time Saturday and opening time today. They entered through a cellar window. A revolver also was taken.

Emil N. Tolkaez, former Director of Public Welfare, reported to the police at 7 o'clock last night that in his absence from his home at 3501 Lafayette avenue, yesterday, his wine cellar had been robbed of two gallons of whiskey, 12 quarts of champagne and 24 quarts of Rhine wine, which he valued at $600.

Burglars took $650 in Liberty Bonds, $240 in War Savings Stamps and $30 in cash from the safe of the Emil McMullen Printing Co., 3947 Laclede avenue, between Saturday night and this morning. The combination of the safe was knocked off. Burglars took $304 in cash from the safe of Benjamin Gander in his soft drink establishment at 2757 Shenandoah avenue between Saturday night and this morning, $20 from a cigar box outside the safe and jewelry valued at $250 from Gander's living quarters above his place of business.

Two Robbed by Highwaymen.
Two men took $5.60 and a watch and chain from Ralph Link, 4244 Gano avenue, at 8 p. m., at Carter and John avenues, compelling Link to walk up an alley.

Two men at 8:30 p. m. forced Paul Bibb and Laverne Anderson, 2334 Sullivan avenue, and William Leber, 1210 North Market street, to go into an alley on Sullivan avenue, near Jefferson avenue, and robbed them of $13.20, watch, a fountain pen and a knife.

Seven burglaries in homes from which the owners were absent yesterday were reported. The lost obtained was jewelry and clothing valued at about $2000 from the following homes: Mrs. Rennie Wagner, 2008A Franklin avenue; Walter Myers, 1530 1/2 Olive street; Mrs. Alice Chassonay, 1417 Carroll street; John Wishart, 3945 Lindell boulevard; Mrs. Emma Bohringer, 3123 Hartford street; Linton Okard, 527 Hamilton avenue, and Mrs. Augusta Krausz, 3408 Hartford street.

BILL FOR 10 PER CENT INCREASE TO BE REPORTED FAVORABLY

All City Employees Getting Less Than $3000 Affected—Firemen Want 20 Per Cent Advance.

At a joint meeting of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment and Ways and Means Committee of the Board of Aldermen this afternoon it was agreed to report favorably the bill providing a 10 per cent increase in the salaries of city employees receiving less than $3000 a year, including members of the Fire Department.

The firemen oppose the bill and want 20 per cent. Members of the Municipal Employees' Union also oppose it. They want 17 per cent. Mayor Kiel said at the meeting that these demands were impossible, although he is in sympathy with them. The city simply hasn't the money, he said. Comptroller Nolte said the estimated revenue for city purposes next year will be $14,500,000. Estimates already made by the department for maintenance alone total $15,825,000, he said.

A special meeting of the Board of Aldermen was called for this afternoon to act on the measure.

Perfection Tire Free Offer

Good for One Week Only, Beginning Today
To Get You Acquainted With Perfection Tires

This is an offer that you have never received before—we allow the amounts mentioned in the center box on your old tires—no matter how worn they are—providing you purchase a Perfection Tire this week.

FREE! FREE!
We will allow you this amount in cash for your old tires, no matter what make or what condition they are in. And our mileage guarantee holds good on the tires you buy.

You're getting a real tire—one that will give you unexcelled service, and they are sold under a positive adjustment of 8000 miles on all non-skid and 7000 miles on all plain tread.

The Perfection Asbestos Protected Tires are all handmade by expert workmen.

The asbestos covering over the layers of cotton fabrics protects your tire from wear. It also forms such a perfect union with the rubber that it prevents blisters and tread separation. It is unaffected by moisture, acids and grease, and particularly by heat from road friction.

LABOR PLANNING TO QUESTION CANDIDATES

Committees Will Be Named Tonight to Conduct Non-partisan Campaign.

The Central Trades and Labor Union and the Building Trades Council will meet in joint session tonight at 2228 Olive street to discuss the plan of the American Federation of Labor to work for the defeat of all candidates for office, national, state and city, who are regarded as opposed to organized labor.

precinct workers to be independent of the card committees representing the two big political parties.

To Question Candidates. A questionnaire prepared by the American Federation of Labor is to be submitted to each candidate and any who do not reply satisfactorily will be opposed at the polls.

Other details for carrying out the political program of the American Federation of Labor will be discussed at tonight's meeting, at which Joseph Woracek, president of the Central Trades and Labor Union, will preside.

The Central Trades and Labor Union yesterday reaffirmed its endorsement of the proposed municipal bond issue of $24,000,000 to be voted on May 11.

To Work Against Bridge Tax. A resolution, concurred in by the Building Trades Council, approving the proposition to have incorporated in the constitution of Illinois a provision exempting the eastern approach of the free bridge from taxation, was unanimously adopted, and a committee was chosen to confer with the Central Trades and Labor Union of East St. Louis in an effort to have the East Side body support the proposition.

MISSING FLYER'S PLANE FOUND. Army Aviator May Have Wandered Into Everglades.

By the Associated Press. ARCADIA, Fla., March 29.—Word reached here today that the plane of Lieut. Omar Niergarth had been found abandoned 12 miles south of Deep Lake. It is believed Niergarth wandered away into the everglades. Search for him is being continued and the hope is expressed that Indians have rescued him.

Niergarth, an army flier, has been missing from Carlstrom Field since Tuesday.

700 NOISY DOGS IN PLACE AS SHOW OPENS

Tenth Exhibition of Kennel Club Draws Entries From All Over U. S.

The tenth dog show of the Mississippi Valley Kennel Club opened at the Coliseum at 10 a. m. today for a three-day exhibition with 700 of the 850 entries in place. Tomorrow and Wednesday the doors will be opened at 9:30 a. m., closing at 10 p. m. each day.

Additional dogs were being brought in during the morning and indications were that the late entrants would bring the total for the show above that originally predicted. Many of the dogs have been entered in the Chicago dog show, immediately following this, and a special baggage car has been engaged to transport these Wednesday night.

Barks and howls of the hundreds of dogs created a bedlam of confusion at the Coliseum early today, but as the dogs became accustomed to their surroundings the noise subsided somewhat. Dogs are entered from all parts of the United States and it is said that the show is second in importance only to the Westminster show in New York. Many well-known handlers and owners from other cities are here with their kennels.

Police Dogs Shown. One of the chief attractions is the display of police dogs, ferocious-looking animals about whose pen a sign has been erected warning sight-seers to "keep hands off." Chief, also, among the attractions is the contest of Boston terriers. G. R. Perkins of Decatur, Ill., is the judge in this division and will announce the awards tonight. Judging the animals began with the opening of the show and by tomorrow many of the dogs will be bedecked with the blue, red or white ribbons indicating first, second or third prizes.

Eight thoroughbred Bostons have been entered by Miss Mabel Thorpe of St. Louis, owner of the North Side Kennels. In Cincinnati last week Miss Thorpe won several prizes with these dogs.

"Tiny King," one of her entrants, was declared the best Boston at the Cincinnati show, while "Tiny Teddy" took second prize in all his classes. "Tiny Queen" took best puppy prize at that show. The trophies won by Miss Thorpe's kennels at Cincinnati are on display here.

Mrs. C. A. Delporte of 1316 Arsenal street is another local exhibitor who is showing a number of Boston terriers. E. N. Wilson of 5000 Arsenal street has seven Bostons on exhibition.

World's Champion Pomeranian. What is said to be the finest kennel of Pomeranians, the tiny dogs so popular in society circles, is exhibited by Mrs. T. W. Sessinghaus of 5315 Cabanne avenue. Among these dogs is the winner of the world's championship in the Pomeranian class, "Dainty Black Marco."

Practically every breed known to fanciers is shown. The show is by far the largest ever held in St. Louis. All animals are required to meet the rigid rules of the American Kennel Club, and many champions are on exhibition. Dogs have been brought from as far as Maine and California for the exhibition.

The show will continue through Wednesday night.

SPEEDS UP CAR TO 50 MILES AN HOUR WHEN TOLD TO HALT

Herman C. G. Luyties Later Explains He Thought Officers on Road Were Highwaymen.

Herman C. G. Luyties, St. Portland place, president of the Sanitol Chemical Laboratory Co., increased the speed of his automobile to about 50 miles an hour when called upon to halt by two Deputy Constables on the Lucas and Hunt road, near St. Peter's Cemetery, at 10 o'clock last night. He afterward explained that he had believed the officers were highwaymen.

Luyties, accompanied by two women, was driving a new car and only one of the headlights was burning. He was going south toward the St. Charles Rock road when the deputies ordered him to stop. When they caught up with him at the St. Charles road they told him that the single light made his automobile resemble a motor cycle, which fact might easily lead to an accident.

Luyties refused to appear in court to answer charges of violating the automobile headlight law and speeding.

CHILD, 3, DIES FROM FALL

Antoinette Morrell, 3 years old, of 821 Morgan street, died at her home at 4 p. m. yesterday while in convulsion which doctors said resulted from a fall at her home Friday. In the fall she bumped her head on the floor, causing what at first was believed to be only a slight bruise.

The child was treated at the time with home remedies. Saturday she was seized with convulsions and doctors were called. She recovered from the attack and was thought to be getting better when she was again seized with convulsions yesterday. She died while doctors were working with her.

British Building Many Ships. WASHINGTON, March 29.—British shipbuilders are laying stress on construction of extra tonnage ships, according to a special report to the Department of Commerce. On March 1 there were 55 ships of more than 10,000 tons on British ways, 22 of them of more than 15,000 tons. Complete British statistics for 1919 showed launchings to have aggregated 612 merchant vessels of 1,620,442 tons. "Not a single sailing vessel was launched during the year," the summary stated.

DOCTORS FIND REMEDY FOR COLDS AND FLU

Calotabs, the New Nauseless Calomel Tablets, Cut Short Colds and May Prevent Flu By Keeping Liver Active.

Physicians have learned from experience, during the epidemic of influenza, that one of the most important factors in the prevention of flu and pneumonia is to keep the liver active so that the digestive organs may be in perfect working order and the system thereby enabled to throw off colds, check sore throats, and resist serious complications. For this purpose they have found that the new, nausealess calomel tablets called Calotabs, are far more effective even than the old style calomel, which was formerly the universal favorite, as Calotabs do not weaken the patient, nor interfere with the appetite and digestion.

At the first sign of a cold or sore throat, doctors recommend one Calotab at bedtime with a swallow of water—that's all. No mints, no nausea, nor the slightest interference with your diet, pleasure, or work. Next morning you wake up feeling fine, your liver is active, and your appetite is keen for a good breakfast.

For your protection Calotabs are sold only in original sealed packages, prices and guarantees Calotabs. Your money back if you are not delighted with them.

FLOODS IN MERAMEC AND MISSOURI BOTTOMS

Overflow Caused by Heavy Rains of Last Wednesday and Thursday.

Lowlands along the Meramec and Missouri Rivers were flooded this morning as a result of a gradual rise in both rivers caused by the rain-storms of last Wednesday and Thursday. Indications, however, were that the waters would subside shortly without causing great damage. The stage of the Meramec at Valley Park was 18.6 feet at 7 a. m. today. This was 4.6 feet above flood stage. Virtually all of the lowlands bordering the stream below Pacific were under a few inches of water. Only a small portion of this bottom land is under cultivation. The Missouri River reached 25.9 feet at St. Charles at 7 a. m., which is 8 feet above flood stage. The bottom lands on the St. Louis County side of the river, opposite St. Charles, were inundated in some instances for a distance of a mile from the banks of the river. The stage of 25.9 feet is the highest recorded for the Missouri River since the spring of 1918. The average stage of the river is 8 feet. The Weather Bureau here today issued the following special river forecast: "Missouri River between Lexington and the mouth of the Osage River will not undergo much change. Below the mouth of the Osage it will rise slowly during the next 36 hours, reaching 21 feet at Hermann and 27 feet at St. Charles. It will then begin to subside. "Meramec River at and below Valley Park will rise slowly for the next 12 hours and will then subside. The Mississippi River will continue to rise between Louisiana, Mo., and Cape Girardeau, Mo., reaching 20 feet at Grafton, Ill., on April 1; 28.5 feet at St. Louis on April 1, and 33.1 at Chester, Ill., April 1. It will gradually subside."

35 FURNITURE SALESMEN WALK OUT OF SEVEN STORES

Union Official Says Stores Demanded Their Resignations From Salesmen's Union.

Thirty-five furniture salesmen, members of Local No. 403, Retail Furniture Salesmen's Union, walked out at seven downtown furniture stores this morning, following the refusal of the employers to agree to a new agreement covering hours and working conditions which was presented by the union two weeks ago. John J. White, secretary of the union, said that the members had agreements with nine furniture stores up to Feb. 15 last for working hours from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. except on Saturdays, when the closing time was fixed at 4:30. Two weeks ago, White said, the stores were asked to establish 8:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. as the working hours and this demand was refused.

This morning, he said, the managers of the seven stores affected by the strike, requested the salesmen to sign resignations from the union if they desired to continue at work. The men left.

MEYMAN TO PLEAD INSANITY IN OREGON 'FALSE PRETENSE' CASE

Former St. Louis Fur Speculator Charged With Obtaining $15,000—Gifts to Stranger Cited.

ONTARIO, Ore., March 29.—A plea of insanity is the defense planned by lawyers for Lester I. Heyman, former St. Louis lawyer and fur speculator, charged with having obtained $15,000 by false pretenses from the First National Bank here.

Heyman's attorneys have abandoned their efforts to prevent his extradition from Niagara Falls where he was arrested and he is now on his way back here to stand trial.

The insanity plea, it is expected, will be based on his alleged irrational acts in giving away money to strangers, as in the case of his gift of $1000 to the Commercial Club here, and on the fact that the money thus scattered among strangers was in some cases obtained from friends.

Such acts the lawyers will contend show an irrational mind.

Heyman will have his preliminary hearing here next Tuesday.

TRIANGLE IS SQUARED IN 'TEA FOR THREE'

Husband the Dupe, as Usual, in Three-Cornered Comedy Which Diverts Audience.

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

AMONG the wits, it has always been open season for husbands.

At the contemplation of man in the married estate, they have instantly sounded a joyous halloo and loosed the hounds of merriment. To how enduring an instinct they appeal may be judged by the hilarious welcome extended last night by a big audience, at the Shubert-Jefferson theater, to Roi Cooper Megrue's comedy, "Tea for Three."

Here, to be sure, the married wight escapes the full sharpness of Boccaccio's malice; he is not visited with such malevolent mirth as destroyed Moliere's Georges Dandin; nor does he suffer all the outrages with which Falstaff brutally drenched the ears of Master Brooke. The theme, thanks to Mrs. Grundy, has grown devirilized. But the fact remains that in this modern American comedy a man automatically becomes, by reason of his situation in matrimony, fair game for ridicule and machination.

Three years before the play begins, the heroine, Doris, has been confronted with the prospect of choosing between two former college mates, Carter and Philip. The former, pictured as a type of the American business man, is dull, stodgy and passionately acquisitive. The latter is the most charming of men, with a quicksilver intelligence, a fascinating touch of cynicism, and a Celtic flow of sparkling loquacity which never ebbs, and which the slightest impulse can set in endless flood. The one is a real estate operator; the other an imaginative physician, devoted to research.

With the female instinct for security, Doris has little hesitation in selecting the real estate operator. He is perfectly safe for matrimony. He will plod along the furrow of faithfulness all his life, his fancy never wandering from the plow to the meadows beyond the field. He will always make an abundance of money and lavish it upon his wife. Other women will not find him attractive, except for his wealth, and if they do, they will be non-existent so far as he is concerned.

Doris Will Have and Eat Cake.

Philip, on the other hand, is a precarious matrimonial risk. Women will never fail to find him prepossessing, and his lively temperament gives little assurance that he will remain obdurately unappreciative. What is worse, no doubt, is that he entirely lacks the instinct of acquiescence, and hardly sends about their business wealthy women who yearn to be "delightfully indisposed," but have no alibi save idleness.

Doris, then, enjoys a fortified position as a married woman. She covers quickly, however, that security is not at all exciting. Her husband is indispensable as the steadfast foundation of her existence, but neither can she do without Philip's vivacity and brilliance—and likewise his romantic love-making.

By means of a plot of which her husband is the dupe and Philip the accomplice, she contrives to have her cake and eat it, too. It is clear that she is resolute to keep not only Carter but Philip also as her exclusive property, for she is not a little cross when tales of the physician's flirtations come to her ears.

This triangle is reflected in the institution of "Tea for Three." Since the woman's marriage, Philip has taken tea every Thursday afternoon with Doris and her husband. The whole affair is conducted, of course, on the most admirable Platonic principles. After three years some suspicion begins to percolate through the husband's dense wits, and his jealousy brings the three-cornered tea-table to wreck. Its restoration is the theme of the comedy.

Heroic Cure for Jealousy.

The first aim of the conspirators is to goad Carter's jealousy into frenzy. He is permitted to catch his wife in various fibs concerning her clandestine meetings with Philip; he misses her photograph from the piano, and justly deduces that Philip has taken it; finally, he is permitted to witness, from the street below, a visit by his wife to her admirer's bachelor rooms. By means of suggestion, Carter is driven to the desperate resort of proposing a duel in which the man drawing the losing card shall kill himself within 24 hours. Philip contrives to lose.

On the following day, we see Carter plunged into remorse. He has forgotten even the deal in which he stands to win a quarter of a million. He has tried in vain to find Philip. And finally there comes a newspaper "extra" with the news of the physician's suicide. This fine and crowning touch—Philip has had one single copy of the paper printed—has not been confided to Doris; she believes Philip is really dead, and in a strong scene reproaches her overwhelmed husband as a murderer. Then—enter Philip, there are reconciliations all around; the husband frantically declares his eternal trust in his wife and the family friend, and the curtain drops upon the rehabilitated tea table.

Such a plot cannot altogether account for the play's success. There is far more talk than action, and a lion's share of the conversation falls to the garrulous Philip. His monologues are a continuous splutter of quibbles and epigrams, telling enough to provoke easy laughter, but not profound enough to tax the exhausted commercial gentleman. A few samples may be quoted to give a savor of the author's wit:

A Few Epigrams.

"The most absorbing thing in the world is the love of a married woman."

an—and married men know nothing about it."

"Yes, sometimes I tell the truth. It is the only unattractive vice I have."

"It's a very grave insult to a woman to suggest that she could not be unfaithful if she wanted to."

"In college I thought black was black and white was white. Now I see they're both a spotted gray."

"A respectable woman is one who is unfaithful only in her secret back—a woman who will not make a reality of her unfaithfulness, the stupid, brutal hand of her husband makes that dream impossible."

The stretch of three acts of talk would be intolerable without highly skilled elocution and acting, and these are provided by an admirable cast—Arthur Bryn as Philip, Laura Hope Crews as Doris, and Frederick Perry as Carter. There are only two other roles, those of a valet and a maid, excellently done by Albert L. Marsh and Kathryn Kress. A star not on the program volunteered to take the humble role of one who plays the piano back of the stage. Only a few knew that these tinkles came from the fingers of Ruth Chatterton, heroine of "Moonlight and Honey-suckle," which opens tonight at the American.

MAN POISONED BY HAIR TONIC

No Waiting Now At a Second Window

YOU had only a few minutes to catch your train. The long line at the ticket seller's window moved slowly, because the clerk had to walk forty or fifty feet every time he got a new ticket. You fretted and fumed for fear you'd miss your train, while visions of another long wait at the Pullman window increased your anxiety. For the first time you realized how important to you was the way in which a railroad company filed its tickets.

That was the old method of selling tickets. We have devised a portable ticket-case which contains all kinds of tickets—local, long-distance, foreign, Pullman—more than 3000 forms in all. It is kept at the clerk's elbow. He never has to leave his window. The line moves fast. You buy your railroad transportation and your Pullman ticket without visiting a second window. Your time is saved and your nerves are spared a strain.

Our traffic manager conceived the idea. Our architect worked it out. The case was first tried at the Grand Central Terminal. Now it is in use at many congested points, and its usefulness is being rapidly extended. This invention has revolutionized the handling of railway tickets. This is one detail of many where constant care and attention to the public's needs enable us to meet them.

ILLEGAL OPERATION CHARGED

Mrs. Emma Hoffman, Midwife, Released on Bond, Denies Guilt.

Mrs. Emma Hoffman, 56 years old, of 5523 Wren avenue, a midwife, was arrested early today after Mrs. Viola Keller, 24, of 4204 North Broadway, had been taken from her home to the city hospital in a critical condition yesterday. Mrs. Keller was said to be suffering from the effects of an operation.

On a statement made to the police by Mrs. Hoffman, she stated that she was taken to the hospital after being arrested and identified by Mrs. Keller. Mrs. Hoffman denied the charges and was released on bond.

CHARMING CONCERT BY WOODWIND PLAYERS

Members of Orchestra Exploit Unfamiliar Instruments in Novel Program.

Those modest instruments which shrink concealed in the rear of the orchestra, and mostly do humble service in coloring the designs drawn by the strings and the masses built by the brasses, came to the fore in a unique concert given yesterday afternoon at the Odeon by the first woodwind ensemble ever organized in this city. The audience was almost as large as that at the "pop" concerts, and displayed every sign of interest and enjoyment.

The performers, all members of the Symphony Orchestra, and their instruments were as follows: John F. Kiburz, flute; Adolph Bertram, oboe; Tony Suril, clarinet; Pellegrino Lecce, French horn, and Frederick Fischer and Domenico DelleDonne, bassoons. Mme. Ida DelleDonne assisted as harpist, and Fischer at times supported others at the piano.

Not a few invertebrate symphony goers made acquaintance for the first time with some of these instruments, or laid eyes for the first time on the men who play them week after week in the orchestra. The program was completely novel, and the paucity of music for the instruments was shown by the fact that, for encores, the artists were compelled to repeat parts of the works just finished.

The first number was a quintet in B flat, Opus 57, by Charles Eduard Lefebvre, formerly a teacher at the Paris Conservatory. The work gave ample opportunity for the hearers to identify the adducet complainings of the oboe, the noble sweetness of the flute, the rich baritone of the bassoon, the mellow gold of the French horn's voice.

The second number was a rondo for the unusual combination of clarinet, bassoon and piano, by DelleDonne, who played the bassoon part. The audience applauded the composer warmly, and demanded a second performance of the latter part of the work. Then Mme. DelleDonne played with her usual artistry two harp solos, Verdi's "Vision" and Tchaikovsky's "Gavotte."

A Larghetto for flute and harp, by Hans Huber, a Swiss composer, proved the most popular offering of the afternoon, due in large part to the genuine artistic feeling and technique, and the beautiful tone which characterized Kiburz's flute playing. Then came a Prelude and Menuet for the quintet, by Emile Louis Fortune Pessard, also a French composer of the nineteenth century, and a trio, "Elegie," for oboe, horn and harp, by Charles Henri Rene de Boisdefre.

All of these numbers kept curiosity alert and pleased the ear, but the deeper emotional touch of true music came only with the final number, a sextet, for flute, oboe, clarinet, bassoon, French horn and piano, by Ludwig Thullie, a professor at the Royal School of Music in Munich, who died in 1907. The first movement, a Larghetto, was particularly inspiring.

FIREMEN WRECK BUILDING WITH STREAMS OF WATER

Method Is Used When High Wind Makes Structure at Fourth and Chestnut Dangerous.

Firemen, with two lines of hose attached to two engines, washed down three floors of a four-story building at the southeast corner of Fourth and Chestnut streets, which is being wrecked to provide a site for the new Federal building, between 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. yesterday.

Workmen began wrecking the building Friday and that afternoon the wind blew down a portion of the wall on the top floor. Yesterday Director of Public Safety McElvey decided the wind might cause further collapse of the walls and ordered the firemen to tear them down with streams of water.

The work of the firemen attracted a large crowd to the scene. One of the streams used in wrecking the walls was directed from a "water tower" on a level with the top floor.

SWITCHMAN'S LEGS CUT OFF

Run Over When He Steps From Footboard of Engine.

Henry Drexel, 40 years old, of 1484 Stanton avenue, was run over and both legs were cut off near the thighs at 4 a. m. today when he stepped from the front footboard of a switch engine in the Carle avenue yards and slipped and fell in front of the engine. He was taken to St. Mary's Infirmary, where doctors said his injuries would result fatally, probably.

Drexel was a switchman employed by the Rock Island Railroad.

$212,424 IN HOUSING FUND; CAMPAIGN TO CLOSE WEDNESDAY

Business Women's Committee Cancels Downtown Offices Again—Workers to Meet Wednesday.

Subscriptions and pledges in the Y. W. C. A. Letmar Club campaign to raise $500,000 for hotels for working girls totaled $212,424 at noon today. This amount was expected to be largely increased by reports at the luncheon of the Executive Committee at Hotel Statler.

According to present plans the active campaign will conclude Wednesday night but donations will be received after that and it is expected that many of the larger industrial plants which have submitted pledges to their directors for approval will report on these after the campaign is over.

A luncheon for all of the team captains and workers, to be attended by about 800 men and women, will be held at Hotel Statler

Wednesday noon. The final reports of the various teams will be made and plans outlined for obtaining the amount necessary to complete the $500,000. It is believed the amount reported to headquarters by that time will be close to $350,000, as the Associated Retailers have informed Mrs. Harvey G. Mudd, chairman of the Campaign Committee, that their complete report will not be made until the closing day.

The business women's committee is making another canvass of the offices in the downtown section today.

Why Dr. PRICE'S "Cream" Baking Powder

DON'T FUSS WITH MUSTARD PLASTERS!

Mustard Works Without the Blister—Easier, Quicker

There's no sense in mixing a mess of mustard, flour and water when you can easily relieve pain, soreness or stiffness with a little clean, white Mustard. Mustard is made of pure oil of mustard and other helpful ingredients, combined in the form of the present white ointment. It takes the place of mustard plasters, and will not blister. Mustard usually gives prompt relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frostbitten feet, colds of the chest (it often prevents pneumonia). 30c and 60c jars; hospital size $2.50.

They Enjoy Trading in Their Own Store

From day to day folks come into Union Electric's appliance store at 12th and Locust streets, St. Louis, and into the company's offices in Franklin, Jefferson, Perry, St. Charles and St. Louis counties, tell us they are shareholders and ask how the business is getting on.

There are now over 3500 of them, and they like to trade in their own store. They know Union Electric carries the latest, handsomest, most dependable electric goods. They know Union Electric buys these goods in large quantities on narrow margins and sells them at fair prices. They know Union Electric SERVICE stands back of everything sold in Union Electric's store. And they know that when they trade in their own store they are helping Union Electric earn the dividends on their Union Electric stock.

Over $2,600,000 of Union Electric's $3,000,000 of 7 per cent preferred stock is now owned by Union Electric customers. They are steadily absorbing the remainder of the third $1,000,000 issue now on sale. Every dollar of this stock is backed by MORE than a dollar's worth of State-appraised, State-regulated, income-producing public service property. Each $100 share pays $7 a year in cash dividends—$1.75 every three months.

SALES OFFICES: Room 201, Union Electric Building, 12th and Locust streets, St. Louis, and Union Electric's offices in Franklin, Jefferson, Perry, St. Charles and St. Louis counties.

PRICE: $100 a share for cash; $102 on a ten-payment plan under which buyers draw 5 per cent interest on installment payments, and can withdraw all payments, WITH INTEREST, any time before final installment is paid.

schools were given an Easter party at noon today at the Junior League lunchroom, 317 North Eighth street.
Several members of the Junior League acted as hostesses. In addition to the ordinary noonday lunch-noon that the Junior League provides every day, the children had all the ice cream they could eat, which was the gift of a not-to-be-named oil magnate, who has been aroused to the splendid nature of the work the league is doing in that part of St.
Louis around Nineteenth and Morgan streets.

Miss Leonore Cahill, to whom the donation was entrusted, acted as the salmoner of the occasion. Other Junior League members, including Mmes. August Busch Jr., Effie Bag-nell Culbertson, Harold Wilson, Dan
Jones and Knox Tausig, and Misses
Elizabeth Holliday, Jane Goddard, Vesta Reed, Mary Plant, Edith Skip-with, Ada Johnson, Elizabeth Mau-engagement of her daughter, Miss Margaret Corley, to Robert Hafferkamp Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hafferkamp of 4055 Magnolia place. Miss Corley is a graduate of Mary Institute and Mr. Hafferkamp received his education at Western Military Academy. No date for the wedding has been set.

Miss Eva Cotter of 4469 Westminster place was hostess today at an informal luncheon in compliment of Miss Charlotte Chassee of Vermont, who is the guest of Miss Vesta Reed of 230 North Newstead avenue.

Miss Kathleen Lucy of 5156 Kennington avenue entertained Saturday afternoon with a bridge party and luncheon for Miss Mary Robertson, whose marriage to Dr. Charles

Schweizer of 1246 Amhurst place.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Dis-brow of Kirkwood are among the recent arrivals at Hotel Green, Pasadena.

A banquet was given at Hosmer
Hall on Saturday evening, March 27, in honor of the outgoing and incoming boards of the school paper,
The Siren. Miss Ruth Mayer acted as toastmistress and toasts were responded to by the new editor in chief, Miss Marjorie Cooper, and by the following young ladies: Misses Marian Martin, Sarah Miller, Alberta
Williams, Katherine Dodge, Byrd
Warner. Original songs were sung in honor of the Siren and Mrs. Elma H. Benton, principal of Hos-mer Hall, gave a congratulatory address to the two boards.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Meyer of the Lent is over! Once more we can have a big, hearty dinner with all the good things we want.

And bread, for such a meal, as for all meals, is of course indispensable.

In the thousands of homes where Valier's Enterprise Flour is used, that bread will be extra fine.

Crisp, golden-crusted loaves that make your mouth water just to look at them can surely be counted on.

And the reasons are as simple as the flour is good.

Valier's Enterprise Flour is ground in clean, sun-lit mills from the finest, hard-winter wheat grown.

Special care is taken to retain all the exceptional baking qualities which only such grain can have.

And repeated sifting through silk adds remarkable fineness.

The result is a masterpiece of modern milling skill—a flour pre-eminently suited for fine baking of all descriptions.

Its slightly greater cost per sack is inconsequential. It is quality-insurance, more than repaid in the long run by better baking and

SUFFERED 8 YEARS
WITH RHEUMATISMPrescription C-2223 Gave Relief.

Mr. Will Parks, of Manor, Texas, writes October 8th, as follows:

"I suffered with rheumatism for eight years. After taking Prescription C-2223, I found it to give wonderful relief. I will always recommend your treatment to those suffering from this same trouble."

There are many reasons why Prescription C-2223 is so successfully used by those suffering with rheumatism, lumbago, gout and neuralgia. A doctor spent years perfecting his treatment for these dread diseases, now known as Prescription C-2223. You can now buy it at any drug store, ready prepared, at less than the price which you have to pay a doctor for prescribing, to say nothing of the cost of the medicine.

Again, Prescription C-2223 is guaranteed to give you relief. The present owners of this splendid treatment are so sure that you will be benefited that they authorize all druggists to return your $3.00 if two $1.50 bottles do not give you relief.

In taking Prescription C-2223 a very important factor is needed—something that will stimulate the flow of bile and regulate the bowels. Prescription C-2223 does not cause griping. One is a dose and but two or three need be taken every two weeks.

If your druggist will not supply you with Prescription C-2223, send $3.00 for one $1.50 bottle and a box of pills will be sent you postpaid on receipt of $1.75. Write Department 127, 2223 Laboratory, Memphis, Tenn. For literature, 1920 Almanac and sample of the pills.

SALINOS"HUCKLEBERRY FINN"
A FINE FILM COMEDY

Sir Gilbert Parker's "Right of Way" Also One of Week's Big Movie Features.

The screen version of "Huckleberry Finn," Mark Twain's masterpiece of juvenile adventure, which opened for a week at the Kings Theater yesterday, is a fine presentation of the salient features of a great work of fiction. Lewis D. Sargeant, one of the best of the youthful movie actors, has the title role and he plays it with a rare understanding of the character.

The episodes chosen for the screen include the efforts to "civilize" Huck, the unexpected return of his unspeakably cruel father, his flight from the island after leaving a trail which leads to the belief he has been murdered, his journey down the Mississippi on a raft in company with "Nigger Jim," a runaway slave, his meeting with the Duke and the "Dolphin," a predatory pair of thieves and confidence men, the never-to-be-forgotten "Royal Nonesuch" hoax, his saving of the Wilks estate by placing its tangible assets in the testator's coffin, his meeting with Tom Sawyer at the Phelps home, where he has been impersonating Tom, all working up to the comically involved climax in which Tom and Huck follow the teachings of the "best authorities" in rescuing "Nigger Jim." The scenic settings include many fine glimpses of the Mississippi River. It is a picture that will delight all who have followed the fortunes of Mark Twain's venturesome Huck and resourceful Tom. A scenic prologue, a comedy and a news weekly also are on the bill.

Sir Gilbert Parker Drama.

In "The Right of Way," a dramatization of a Sir Gilbert Parker story by the Pershing, there is presented a story of unusual power and Bert Lytell is seen to excellent advantage in this dramatization of life in the Canadian woods. The action of the play revolves about the dashing, cynical, smartly dressed "Beauty" Steele, a young lawyer of Montreal. There is presented in the story a vividness of dramatic incident, a swift and at times wholly unexpected change in the course of the lives of those involved. The most dramatic feature is perhaps that when Steele wins the case in which he defends Joe Portuguese, a lumberman accused of murder. He had taken the case for the sheer love of battle and because the girl was there to watch him. When the grateful prisoner attempts to thank him, Steele waves him aside telling him he knows him to be "guilty as hell." Later the chance comes for Portuguese to save Steele from death and the debt is paid in full.

The entire story is replete with striking, stirring situations and a splendid insight into life in the backwoods of Canada is given, with splendid scenic settings.

Two comedy pictures and a reel of current events, together with a special musical number by Miss Ruth Goodwin, late of the Orpheum circuit, and selections by the Pershing orchestra, complete the bill.

"In Search of a Sinner."

Georgiana Chadbourne, having spent three miserable years with a sanctimonious husband, whose sole ambition in life seemed to revolve about his efforts to make of her a "good little girl," is finally freed by the Grim Reaper and she loses no time, after the conventional period of mourning, in setting out in quest of her heart's desire, a wild, wild man.

She is so determined to find a real sinner that she poses as a married woman so that she will be sure to get a real home breaker. He must be a flirt, a regular "the vampire" and all that sort of thing. She finds her affinity in a park and after seeing him engage in a cafe brawl concludes that he is the genuine article. Even after she discovers that her "sinner" is a member of the Purify League and that his greatest evil consists of slumming for educational purposes she still continues to love him and tries to convert him into a rounder. Her efforts along this line furnish a vehicle for clever comedy work.

Constance Talmadge is at her best as a frivolous, worldly woman in her latest screen play, "In Search of a Sinner," the headline attraction this week at the New Grand Central.

There are several short features on the bill, including something new in the animated cartoon line, a Chester Outing, a sketch by Violet Hemming and a news picture.

Walsh in Exciting Work.

George Walsh, one of the amazing young athletes in the William Fox string of thrillers, is the week's leading feature at the Liberty in "A Manhattan Knight." This film is based on Gelett Burgess' novel, "Find the Woman," and the apparent effort of its adapters was to see how many exciting episodes could be put into a given footage of celluloid. The scenes are laid in New York, with accent on the night life and the borderland of crookdom. The hero starts out to protect the heroine and vindicate her honor, and he soon finds that the task calls for all his arts of self-defense when a "gang" gets on his trail. On the bill also was "The Silksie Bank-note," which will show the workings of the Secret Service Bureau.

At the West End Lyric there is a good and varied bill, of which the leading feature is Marguerite Clark in "Easy to Get." When starting on her honeymoon journey the heroine overhears her husband say, "They're all easy to get if you know the system." Thinking he is talking about women, she alights from the train and she has a bewildering series of adventures before all turns out well.

Several interesting short features also are on the bill. "The Eyes of Youth," with Clara Kimball Young, opened yesterday at the Royal, Shennandoah, Juniata, Lindell and Grand-Florissant.

Building restrictions having turned people back to old houses for homes, we believe many have been forced into most delightful surroundings.

Many an old house, roomy and substantial, needs but the quickening touch of a decorator with vision to give it a homey charm and the downright beauty impossible to create in the cramped quarters of so many modern homes.

Dignified wall paper that is good in tone and rich in subdued pattern, woodwork done so as to make it a note in the general harmony, a French window where it would look best, perhaps a partition removed to make waste space valuable—these are just a few of the services we can render those who are probably worrying over a house that has tremendous potential charm.

The wall paper we mention we have selected in wide variety just with the idea in mind of doing over lovely old houses and making them into homes of distinction.

We can do it all—from architectural improvements to hanging the paper, making the shades to furnishing entirely—all under the eye of a capable decorator. Rare service, indeed, and at no greater cost than the hit-and-miss method of "many cooks" who almost invariably "spoil the broth."

Although we have increased the number of decorators, the staff is very busy, so prompt request for service may spare you disappointment.

And please remember, we paper one room as cheerfully and painstakingly as we handle the largest commissions.

You'll be surprised and wonder how we do it when you try Griesedieck Light Beverage for the first time. That same delicious flavor and snap you always tasted when drinking a bottle of "Griesedieck" is still there. Here's the reason: Griesedieck Light Beverage is simply the old "Griesedieck" de-alcoholized—going through the regular four months' brewing and aging process. The alcohol is removed afterwards. To be had at all bars, soft-drink parlors and restaurants. Or you can get it by the case from your dealer.

"Complexion Secrets Of An Actress"

In a recently issued volume bearing the above title, the author says: "Continuous use of coarse paints, rouge and the like had ruined my complexion. My skin was colorless, wrinkled, coarse and punctured with large pores. In England I heard of the virtues of mercolized wax: my first experience with this marvelous substance convinced me it was more valuable than all cosmetics combined. Now whenever my complexion begins to go wrong I get an ounce of mercolized wax at the nearest drug store, spread on a thin layer of it before retiring, washing it off next morning. The wax, after a few such treatments, seems literally to absorb the worst-out condition, when a brighter, healthier, younger-looking skin appears. I began using a solution of powdered salicylic acid once dissolved in a half-pint of witch hazel. Bathing the face in this every day for a while soon revealed the condition most wonderfully."

Insist on "Gude's"

It's not just laziness that robs some people of their energy and spirits. Sometimes their blood is simply too weak to supply the necessary fuel and oxygen to the body. Nothing will restore strength to a thin-blooded body unless the blood itself is made strong, red and rich. Gude's Pepto-Mangan furnishes this, watery blood with the necessary nourishment to enrich it, enabling it to supply energy, vitality and strength to every part of the body. Physicians recommend Gude's Pepto-Mangan to patients suffering from anemia because its beneficial and lasting qualities are well known to the medical profession. Gude's Pepto-Mangan is obtainable in either liquid or tablet form. Both forms contain exactly the same strength and medicinal properties. When you buy Pepto-Mangan of your druggist, be sure the name "Gude's" is on the package. Without "Gude's" it is not Pepto-Mangan.

Get at the Real Cause—Take
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles. Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain. Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 10c and 25c.

Y. M. H. A. FOLLIES
DRAWS LARGE HOUSE

Men Are Aided by Forty Talented Young Women in Presenting Musical Comedy.

The Young Men's Hebrew Association's "Follies of 1920" drew a large audience to Moolah Temple last night. In the first part, a minstrel show, the young men had the stage to themselves, but in the second part, a musical comedy entitled "The Sentimental Lady," they had the assistance of more than 40 talented young women, including a "beauty chorus" which really could sing. In their offering Miss Fanny Rovin, Miss Florence Weenick and Miss Fay Orenstein did excellent solo work, one of the hits of the performance being the singing of "Oh, by Jingo" by Miss Rovin and the chorus. The voices were young, fresh and well pitched and the massed effect was better than that sometimes achieved by professional musical comedy choruses.

Among the men the principal vocalists in this part of the show were William Wolff, who sang "Taxi," and Milton Strauss, who sang "I'm Always Pining for the Other Fellow's Girl."

The joke which seemed to strike the audience as most enjoyable was when Frank (Stanley Israel) said to his disinherited heiress, Stella (Florence Weenick): "I don't care for the money. It's you I want." This was written as a serious line, but it seemed to strike most of those present as extremely funny.

It turned out the disinherited was not absolute. Under the terms of the will Stella was to lose the fortune only if her brother Edward (Samuel D. Wise) should marry first. Of course the disinterested brother didn't want to gain the whole fortune by beating his sister to the altar, but he didn't like the young man who was paying court to her.

The employment of private detectives and a chaperon to watch Stella caused complications which were added to by the fact that the "chaperon" was her lover in disguise. In the cast of principals in the musical comedy, besides those already mentioned, were Ben Topper, Harold Sparks, Clara Friedman, Mildred Flacks, Lillian Blumberg, Julius M. Klein and Ben Halpern.

In the "beauty chorus," trained by John E. McKinnon, were Julia Silverman, Rose E. Galt, Pearl Deutsch, Mahilda Taub, Cecile Seltzer, Rosella Aronoff, Hope Goldman, Nettie Covin, Malverna Morris, Minnie Siteman, Pearl Goldstein, Anna Silverstein, Jeanette Covinsky, Fannie Davidson, Eva Segel, Hattie Litt, Etta Margulis, Elizabeth Cohen, Mary Nussbaum, Frances Sender, Hetsy Sparks, Eva M. Wasserman, Belle Covinsky, Sarah Wise, Jane Sanowsky, Anna Stone, Bernice Marshak, Pearl Lerner and Goldie Podolsky.

Some Minstrel Jokes. In the blackface minstrel section Edward Horn was the intercomer. The scene was laid in a hotel lobby. Joe Fadem was the bellboy, Ben Topper the porter, Milton Strauss the doorman and Walter Goldman the checker. The doorman told a story at the expense of the porter, whom he described as a most resourceful and versatile ragtime piano player. Nothing was too difficult for him to try on the piano. "Why, he was playin' at a church entertainment the other day," said the doorman, "and the preacher seemed interested in him and asked him if he knew the Ten Commandments and he answered: 'I can't say that I do, but if you'll whistle the first few bars I'll keep up with you all right.'"

Said the porter to the checker: "How come that when you went to that funeral the other day and you took that last look at the dear departed you bust out laughin'?"

"Tell you how that was," replied the checker. "Just couldn't help it. I knew that gone-away brother right well and he always used to say to me: 'Boy, when I die I ain't going to no heaven, or no purgatory, or no hell. And when I done took that last look at him I just had to bust out laughin' because there he was, all dressed up and no place to go.' Much merriment was created by the circulation of a dollar bill. The checker owed it to the doorman, who in turn owed it to the porter, who owed it to the bellboy, who owed it to the checker, so that by the time it quit circulating it was back in the checker's pocket and all debts were paid.

Several Vocal Hits.

In this section the vocal hits were the singing of "The Jazz Babies' Ball" by William Wolff and the company and the singing of "I'm Away Ahead of the Times" by Milton Strauss. In the minstrel chorus were: Abe Becker, Leon Diamond, William B. Dross, Ely E. Goldwasser, Jesse S. Horwitz, David Kaplan, Jacob R. Kaplan, Bernard Keller, Lawrence Kling, Samuel L. Krantzberg, Barnett Myers, Morris Pustlin, Harold Meyers, Louis L. Pastelnick, Frank Pincus, Louis H. Rosen, Sol Rosenblum, Meyer Roudman, Edmund Rovin, Albert Sparks, L. H. Schumacher, Ralph Sparks, Sam Senturia, Fred Sale, David Spitzer, William Wolff, Harry Weiss and Sam Zadeck. The overtures were played by a large amateur orchestra led by Iri Rosenblum and the show music was played by Maxwell Goldman's orchestra. After the performance the floor was cleared and there was dancing.

FORMER INSURANCE AGENT HERE INDICTED FOR EMBEZZLEMENT

Oliver H. Wendler, now in Chicago, is charged with taking $267 from Prudential Company. It was made known today that an indictment had been voted against Oliver H. Wendler, formerly an agent here for the Prudential Life Insurance Co., charging him with embezzlement of $267.46 of the company's funds. Wendler formerly lived at 4710 A.

McPherson avenue. He is now said to be in Chicago, and a policeman attached to the Circuit Attorney's office will be sent there to arrest him. The indictment was based on information given to the Circuit Attorney that after Wendler quit his employment with the insurance company May 28 last an examination of his collection accounts showed a discrepancy, and efforts to obtain settlement from him were unsuccessful.

Nurse Badly Injured By Car. Mrs. Myrtle Clayton, 42 years old, a nurse at the Masonic Home, 5351 Delmar boulevard, was seriously injured when she was struck by an eastbound Delmar car in front of the home at 7 p. m. yesterday. She was taken to the Jewish Hospital. Doctors said she had suffered scalp wounds, a fractured nose and cuts and bruises. Mrs. Clayton, the police say, wanted to board the car and ran across the tracks in front of it.

Do You Know That Mazola Can Be Used
For More Different Purposes And
At Less Cost Than Any Other Food In Your Kitchen?

OF interest to every wide-awake housewife are these important facts about the general use, the quality and the unusual economy of Mazola.

First, know that Mazola contains no moisture. Butter and Lard contain moisture. Mazola is an absolutely 100% pure vegetable fat. It never becomes rancid.

Deep Frying

NO fat excels Mazola for deep frying. It is far better and a great deal more economical than lard or compounds. The same lot of Mazola can be used over and over again—even after frying fish and onions. Merely straining makes it perfectly fresh for use as a shortening. It carries no odors or flavors from the foods cooked in it and does not smoke up your kitchen.

Shortening

THE purity and richness of Mazola best demonstrates itself in the fact that $\frac{1}{4}$ to $\frac{1}{2}$ less Mazola is required than that of butter or lard. This means that your cakes and pie crust will not only be light, rich and easily digested but will cost you less to prepare. Being an oil, the tiresome "creaming-in process" is eliminated. Mazola is always ready for instant use.

THOUSANDS of Italians, who certainly know olive oil, use Mazola. Not only because it costs about half that of the best olive oil, but because of its richness, quality and purity.

For French Dressing, Mazola blends readily—and Mayonnaise made with Mazola will keep for weeks without separating.

Once you try Mazola you will never go back to lard or butter for cooking—or olive oil for dressings.

Important to Housewives

One of the most severe comparative tests ever used on a cooking fat gives unqualified FIRST HONORS to Mazola.

Understand the remarkable economy and high quality of Mazola by these figures.

FRENCH FRIED POTATOES

| | | |
|--------------------|-------|------------------|
| 2 lbs. of Mazola | fried | 26 lbs. Potatoes |
| 2 lbs. of Lard | " | 8 " |
| 2 lbs. of Compound | " | 11 1/2 " |

Note: Mazola goes over three times as far as lard; is twice as economical as compound.

FISH

| | | |
|--------------------|-------|--------------|
| 2 lbs. of Mazola | fried | 25 lbs. Fish |
| 2 lbs. of Lard | " | 15 " |
| 2 lbs. of Compound | " | 20 " |

Note: Compare the figures yourself. Even with frying fish Mazola does not smoke up your kitchen.

DOUGHNUTS

| | | |
|--------------------|-------|---------------|
| 2 lbs. of Mazola | fried | 216 Doughnuts |
| 2 lbs. of Lard | " | 144 " |
| 2 lbs. of Compound | " | 168 " |

Note: All doughnuts were the same size. Mazola-made doughnuts are more easily digested.

P. S. Reasons for these remarkable figures are explained in column to the left. Read it.

Is Your Guard Down?

Every man is a fighter, though he may not be a pugilist. His daily task is his fight—and he needs to be fit and ready for it.

Constipation to the business fighter is the "out-of-condition" of the pugilist. Constipation not only makes the business fighter dull and slow, and unfit for effort, but it is the "lowered guard" that leaves the opening for the jarring blows of serious disease.

By an entirely new principle Nujol keeps the poisonous food waste moving out of the body. Every other form of treatment either irritates or forces the system. Nujol works on the waste matter instead of on the system.

Nujol prevents constipation by keeping the food waste soft, thus helping Nature establish easy, thorough bowel evacuation at regular intervals—the healthiest habit in the world.

It is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take—try it.

A New Method of Treating an Old Complaint

IRISH HOME RULE BILL READ SECOND TIME IN COMMONS

Measure Called Up Amid Atmosphere of Tenseness, but With Little Evidence of Excitement.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 29.—The second reading of the Irish home rule bill was moved in the House of Commons today by Ian MacPherson, the Secretary for Ireland, amid an atmosphere of tenseness, but with little evidence of excitement.

The Government, fearing that Sinn Féiners might make a demonstration, had caused special guards to be stationed at Westminster, but their services were not needed.

Two motions for rejection of the bill have been prepared, one by the Labor party and the other by former Premier Asquith. The Speaker has given precedence to the former. Interest, however, centers upon the proceedings expected tomorrow when Asquith will speak against the bill and will be answered by Premier Lloyd George.

Explaining the provisions of the bill, MacPherson stated that the recent events in Ireland had only strengthened the view that an undivided Ireland was impossible. Referring to the proposal for an Irish council which is one of the points in the bill that has been severely attacked, he said the Government was prepared to listen sympathetically to suggestions for improving the council.

Secretary States Views.

The Government, the Secretary declared, had acted magnanimously toward Ireland in past years. The present prosperity of the country was due to its connection with the United Kingdom, he asserted, and any secession, in whole or in part, could not be tolerated. It would be suicidal, he insisted, for Ireland to be separated from the empire.

The reason persons deported from Ireland are not brought to trial is because it is "impossible to get the necessary evidence," as the result of terrorism and intimidations in Ireland, Premier Lloyd George declared in answer to a question.

The Premier said the Government would not promise to cease deportations from Ireland during the discussions of the Irish home rule bill.

PROPERTY VALUED AT $30,000 LOST IN WASHINGTON (MO.) FIRE

Flames Sweep Over Residence Section—Embers Carried 5 Blocks by Windstorm.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. WASHINGTON, Mo., March 29.—A fire started in the residence district in the western part of the city at noon yesterday and caused a loss of property valued at $30,000. The residences of Louis J. Aholt and Mrs. Ida Detmer destroyed and the greater part of the furnishings were lost. Several other frame buildings were destroyed. The flames, fanned by a high southwest wind, for a time threatened to destroy the greater portion of the residence district. Residences in the western part of the district were nearly all of frame and the volunteer fire company and citizens fought for two hours to check the fire.

The roofs of many buildings five or six blocks from the fire were ignited by embers carried in the windstorm. The fire company was handicapped by the low water pressure and buckets were used. Citizens joined in helping carry furnishings from many residences threatened. Louis J. Aholt lost his prize-winning flock of chickens in the fire, and eight valuable hogs were caught in the burning barn of C. H. Wilkinson.

75-TON BOOM AT INTAKE TOWER TORN FROM MOORINGS BY WIND

$10,000 Wood and Steel Structure Floats Away and Lodges Against Free Bridge Pier.

A 75-ton wood and steel boom, used to protect the intake tower at the Chain of Rocks from ice, trees and other floating objects, was torn from its moorings yesterday afternoon in the windstorm and floated downstream to the Free Bridge, where it stopped against one of the piers.

The boom is 50 feet long, 15 feet wide and 12 feet high and draws 9 feet of water. It was held to the intake tower by iron chains with links an inch thick. When it started downstream warnings were sent out to river craft, but the high wind had practically cleared the stream of boats. The boom, which is valued at about $10,000, will be towed back to the intake tower today.

THREE ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

Man, Wife and Daughter Accused of Killing Wealthy Recluse.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. DANVILLE, Ill., March 29.—The trial of Frederick Beuhler, Hoopes-ton butcher, his wife, Mary, and their daughter, Sophia, indicted for the murder of Mrs. Sabina Cummings, at Hoopes-ton, last November, was called in the Circuit Court this morning. Mrs. Cummings, a wealthy recluse, was found fully dressed, murdered in her home at Hoopes-ton Nov. 9, by Sophia Beuhler, a schoolgirl, and a granddaughter.

The motive for the crime never was established, as $27,000 in currency was found hidden around the house, most of it under the carpets. The evidence is all circumstantial. A special venire of 150 talesmen was present when court opened.

YOUTH, SHOT BY FATHER, DIES

Urged Authorities, Before His Death, Not to Punish Father.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, March 29.—Frank Piano Jr., a 17-year-old youth who was shot by his father in an effort to check the son's wayward career, died at the county hospital yesterday. The father sought to get the boy away from a crowd with whom he found him on Tuesday night and, being rebuffed, shot him.

Arrested and charged with assault with a deadly weapon, the father said he would rather kill the boy than have him a criminal. Before his death, Frank requested that his father be not punished. Piano was re-arrested following the son's death, and the assault charge changed to one of murder.

Frank Erskine, 57 years old, who lives at the city hospital, was taken to the hospital as a patient at 4 o'clock last night after he had been struck and seriously injured by an automobile truck of the Kinloch Telephone Co. as he stood in the street waiting to board a southbound Bellefontaine car at Twelfth and Market streets. He suffered a fractured shoulder and internal injuries.

Erskine had transferred to the Bellefontaine line from the Market street car after visiting Barnes Hospital, where his sister, Mrs. Mary Sadoski of Sagdovai, Ill., is a patient. The truck was driven by Barney Brockman, 20, 5624 Easton avenue. He was arrested. He said Erskine edged back and forth and finally stepped in the path of the machine.

Michael Nemo, 60 years old, of 1014 O'Fallon street, suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries at 8 p. m. when struck by an automobile driven by John Tossie, 23 years old, living on the Union road, St. Louis County, as Nemo crossed the street in front of 1111 North Broadway. Nemo was taken to the city hospital.

AMATEUR 'SHERLOCK HOLMES' GETS BEATING, $300 FINE

Elmer F. Morley's attempt to do a little detective work last night cost him a trouncing, and also a $300 fine in Police Judge Mix's court today.

Morley, who is 25 years old, resides at 3842 Obeah avenue. He was arrested last night on a charge of disturbing the peace of Will Levy, 23, of 4223 Page boulevard.

Levy testified that he was escorting a young woman to her home shortly after 10 p. m. when he observed Morley, a stranger, following him. As they neared the girl's home, Morley, he said, walked up to them and, lighting a match, peered into Levy's face, remarking that he was "looking for a man named Murphy."

Levy said that he took the girl to her home and started toward his own house. As he neared the latter place he again saw Morley. Levy said he then administered a beating to him, afterward calling the police.

"I was just doing a little 'Sherlock Holmes' work, Judge," was Morley's explanation.

"That's an unprofitable field. You are fined $300," the Court replied.

EMBROIDERY IMPORTER DIES

Ernest Morisse, 67 years old, an importer of laces and embroideries at 1627 Washington avenue, was stricken with heart disease yesterday morning and died at 8:40 p. m. at his home, 3949 Magnolia avenue.

Morisse was born in Bremerhaven, Germany, and emigrated to this country when 17 years old, coming to St. Louis from New York in 1878. He had been in business here since 1886. He is survived by his wife and two sons, William and Herbert Morisse, of St. Louis. The funeral will be at 2 p. m. tomorrow from the residence, with interment in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

POLICE AT COLUMBIAN CLUB BECAUSE OF NOTE

Policemen Fail to Find Gambling Referred to in Anonymous Missive.

Police visit Saturday night to the Columbian Club, Lindell boulevard and Vandeventer avenue, about which a member complained to Chief O'Brien, were made on the strength of an anonymous letter. Chief O'Brien stated today, which he referred to Capt. Stinger of the Newstead avenue district for investigation.

The letter, received last week, stated that there was gambling almost any night at the club. When Capt. Stinger received it from the Chief he turned it over to the night force with instructions to investigate and report Saturday evening a squad went to the club and was shown through. No gambling was found. About midnight Lieut. Hickey called and made an inspection, but found no gambling.

The second visit angered some of the members. One of them telephoned to Chief O'Brien at his home and asked an explanation of the visit. The chief told him about the anonymous letter. The man said the police had been through twice and had found nothing, but were still hanging around, which made it embarrassing for members who had guests at the club.

The chief requested that Lieut. Hickey be called to the telephone and on receiving Hickey's report that no gambling had been found he suggested that it was unnecessary for him to stay around any longer. Chief O'Brien denied that he had apologized for the action of the police. "They were only doing their duty," he said. "They have a right to make such investigations."

Capt. Stinger said that homes were not being entered promiscuously in search of gambling, although, since prohibition went into effect, there was reason to think that gambling was springing up in homes. However, when a complaint was received investigations were made.

FURTHER PROSECUTION OF LIEUT. MCGINNIS UNLIKELY

Wife Induces Former Officer to Move to Berkeley, Cal. to Enter Sanitarium.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 29.—Further prosecution of former Lieut. Elsie V. McGinnis of St. Louis on a charge of violating the Mann act in eloping to this city last July with Miss Esther Betts, 19 years old, also of St. Louis, appears unlikely, as Federal authorities here are of the opinion that the ends of justice would not be served by bringing him to trial a second time.

Mrs. Myrtle McGinnis has prevailed upon him to move from their quarters in the Marx Hotel here to Berkeley, Cal., across the bay, where she is arranging to have him placed in a sanitarium.

Federal authorities profess not to know of Miss Betts' whereabouts. It is understood here that she plans to return shortly to St. Louis.

Earthquake Recorded at Chicago. By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, March 29.—An earthquake shock of considerable intensity was recorded by the seismographs in the office of the Weather Bureau here. The tremors started at 11:14 last night and continued until 12:29 a. m. today. It was most intense at 11:27 p. m. The earthquake was centered approximately 100 miles from Chicago.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Farming and the Trades.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
In your editorial entitled "Bricklayers and Farmers," last evening you take $25,000,000,000 of farm products and divide by 7,000,000 farmers and get the income of $3,571.43. This $25,000,000,000 is the value of farm products on the market, not the farm; deduct transportation, commission charges and you have net income of farmer.

You are led to believe the farmer gets $2,241 for his wheat, while Government dockage, transportation, etc., cuts this down to $1.84 average price on Missouri farms.

You forget the farmers' wives and children (very few farmers are bachelors) and you took it for granted all farms are one-man farms. Where are your farm hands? Add this to the 7,000,000 farmers you mention and that will raise your number quite a bit.

In comparison the bricklayer's or carpenter's wife never works beside him at his trade or puts in overtime like the farmers' wife. The tradesmen's children never work with him only for wages. The farm children are discriminated against in the child labor law, which makes an exception of agricultural pursuits. Consider what the tradesman draws for overtime. Hardly a day passes a farmer doesn't put in over eight hours.

Then you fail to mention investment and time spent learning the farmer's occupation. Any graduate of a recognized school of agriculture in the United States has spent as much time and money (perhaps more) than a doctor or lawyer. He who learns by experience pays much more.

Count interest on total investment, of wages for farmers' wives and children and farm hands, unavoidable losses, transportation and commission charges, deduct this from total value of farm products and Senator Capper's statement will not seem strong enough.

Eureka, Mo.

Average Profit, $3.42.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
In your issue of March 28 you published a letter from one of your readers attacking the high-grade employment agencies. This party seems to have quite a disgruntled feeling. He speaks of us as profiteering. He probably does not realize the cost of giving services of this nature. He states that it is worth something for a person to secure a good position, but not as much as $3.13 to 50 per cent of the first month's salary.

For general information, might state that our profit on each position that we filled during the last six months of 1919 was $3.42. Considering the volume of business we do, this is a very small percentage and in order to maintain high-grade service we cannot afford to charge less.

R. C. GREEN.

Appreciates the Y.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
In connection with this housing proposition for working women, allow a working girl (who has lived for over three years at the Y. W. Annex) to express her opinion.

In the first place, it is ridiculous for any working girl to even infer that it is compulsory to accept hospitality of the Y. W. C. A.

I have lived there long enough to know that it was a privilege and have that great satisfaction of being safe. There are plenty of other places in St. Louis where a girl can come in any hour she pleases, but any Christian home must maintain certain rules in order that it may hold a standard, and any mother would feel more satisfied to know her girl was in a Christian home in St. Louis.

There are people who are always ready to knock, but if you would only come and visit the building where I have lived for three years you would candidly say "Give these girls a better home and see to it that they get it."

I can truthfully say that I am thankful to have staid at the Y, for I have had a real second mother in Mrs. H. H. Hardin in every sense of the word. But give us a better home. We deserve it.

LENA ALMA MAHANDT.

Traffic Rules for Pedestrians.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Wouldn't it be a great thing to teach our school children the etiquette of the sidewalk and to send the older folks to night school to learn the first principles about walking the streets of a city? St. Louis seems to be swarming with people who walk on the wrong side of the street, constantly knocking against the people going in the opposite direction, crossing in front of one without warning of any kind, nearly knocking you down. Then there are the men and women who seem to be just idling on the streets, nowhere to go and nothing to do, retarding business men at every step. Last but not least, the silly, giddy 16-17-year-old factory girls going four abreast up Olive or Locust at a slow walk, not caring who is in back of them and trying to pass.

Our streets are the laughing stock of New Yorkers and Chicagoans, who stand and stare and can only wonder at the country town antics of our "downtown."

VICTIM.

MR. DAVIS ON WAR WASTES.

Dwight F. Davis outlined an excellent platform in an excellent address at Cape Girardeau in furtherance of his candidacy for United States Senator. He declared for free speech and against autocratic practices in government perpetuated from the war period. He is for a budget system, for the repeal of such unscientific revenue-raising as the excess profits tax, for equal rights for women, generous treatment for ex-service men, fair instrumentalities for adjusting labor controversies, against the saloon, but also against the "principles underlying the eighteenth amendment" and the Volstead act.

However, certain severe criticisms of war policy deprived the speech of some of the force it might otherwise have had. Undoubtedly war extravagance merits criticism, but does it merit the kind of criticism Mr. Davis embodied in his remarks?

Mr. Davis spoke of a billion dollars being spent for shells, and the failure of more than 1700 shells to arrive in time for use in Flanders. Also he spoke of another billion spent on airplanes, with the result that only 213 observation planes and no fighting planes arrived in France in time for use. He said we expended $1,200,000,000 for artillery, and only 133 American-made guns reached the front.

But if the war had continued longer, would not these expenditures have given results of great value? Criticism, not of the appropriating power, but of those who executed its mandates for moving too liberally, may be justified in some cases, but it must be remembered that a common pool was made of some allied resources. All could not have gone on drawing from that pool indefinitely. Had the war lasted another six months, the preparations we made at vast expense would have availed mightily for its replenishment and the material for its replenishment would have been admirable material, not inferior, hastily-made stuff.

Would Mr. Davis, in ignorance of when the war would end, have dared to do differently, had he been invested with the responsibility for our policy? Is he fair now in his criticism?

There is enough war waste to denounce without denouncing waste which was rendered waste because of the unexpected close of the fighting. Did not the close make enormous savings possible, compared with the scope of a program which everyone admits would have been necessary had peace not come? Would Mr. Davis have had the war go on merely to use up the costly munitions whose manufacture he had authorized?

LOWDEN TO BORAH.

Gov. Lowden denies the charge made by Senator Borah that the Lowden campaign management, like that of Gen. Wood, was "trying to control the Republican convention by the use of money." In proof he offers to submit to Senator Borah personally, or to any committee the Senator may designate, a complete and detailed statement of his campaign finances, the expenditures, the contributions, and the names of the contributors with their several amounts. The Lowden offer, however, is conditioned on the other candidates making similar returns.

This condition, it seems to us, is unfortunate and unnecessary. It is unfortunate in that it serves to delay information which, because of the Borah arraignment, should be hurriedly produced. It is unnecessary because, by submitting this audit of his own campaign, regardless of what others might do, Mr. Lowden would compel his contestants to do the same thing or suffer seriously in public esteem.

The Illinois Governor's response to the Borah challenge should have been unconditional.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF SUBORDINATES.

Minister of Defense Noake, discussing the forthcoming trials of Germans accused of violations of the laws of war, expresses the view that responsibility, if any, should rest with superiors who may have issued unlawful orders, rather than upon subordinates who executed them. Such a policy in the German trials would at least have the effect of reducing the number of defendants.

There can be no question of the absolute duty of a subordinate in the military to carry out all lawful orders of his superior, leaving the inference, at least, that unlawful orders are not binding. But the question immediately arises, who is to judge on this point? The subordinate is certainly in a difficult position when called on to obey an order which he deems illegal, with the alternatives of personal responsibility if he obeys, or disgrace and punishment if he disobeys.

Our courts, while declaring that sound public policy requires that a subordinate execute an illegal order at his peril, have nevertheless shown a disposition to place, as far as possible, responsibility for violations of the laws of war upon the superior who initiates them rather than upon the subordinate. As was said in the case of McCall vs. McDowell:

Except in a plain case of excess of authority, where at first blush it is apparent and palpable to the common understanding that the order is illegal, I cannot but think that the law should excuse the military subordinate when acting in obedience to the orders of his commander.

This was a case in which one McCall was arrested in San Francisco by the order of Gen. McDowell, and held in prison by Capt. Douglass, as the result of expressions of rejoicing upon hearing of the assassination of Lincoln. The district was not under martial law and McDowell's order was clearly unlawful. Though both Gen. McDowell and Capt. Douglass were sued, the former alone was held responsible. While this case did not involve criminal responsibility, it embodies the rule equally applied to cases of that character, and accords with the rule enunciated by English courts. Thus, in the English case of Keightley vs. Bell, Justice Willes said:

I hope I may never have to determine that difficult question, How far the orders of a superior officer are a justification? Were I compelled to determine that difficult question I should probably hold that the orders are an absolute justification in time of actual war—at all events, as against enemies or foreigners—and, I should think, even with regard to English-born subjects of the crown, unless the orders were such as could not legally be given. I believe the better opinion is that an officer or soldier acting under the orders of his superior—not being necessarily or manifestly illegal—would be justified by his orders.

There is this to be said, also, with respect to war law as expounded by the German General Staff: It embodied many doctrines of terrorism which few other states recognized as lawful. As an eminent commentator wrote in 1912, the putting into effect of these doctrines would arouse the reprobation of the civilized world. Yet the German soldier was assured of their lawfulness.

REFUNDING THE LIBERTY BONDS.

Senator Freylinghuysen has introduced in the Senate a bill intended to unify and stabilize the market price of Government bonds, through refunding the Liberty loan issues. His proposal contemplates an authorized refunding issue of $30,000,000,000, 50-year, 3-1/2 per cent bonds, exempt from all except estate and inheritance taxes, with a five-year term for the exchange privilege.

The Liberty loan issues were put out at interest rates ranging from 3-1/2 to 4-3/4 per cent, and it is assumed by the author of the new measure that the tax-exempt provision of the proposed refunding bonds will keep them at par and readily induce holders of the original bonds to accept the benefit of the higher market price in lieu of higher interest rates. Thus, it is argued, holders of the Second Liberty 4s, now quoted around $89, will promptly avail themselves of an 11 point advance in accepting new tax-exempt 3-1/2 per cent bonds. Meantime, it is pointed out, the Government would save in interest charges not less than 1-2 of 1 per cent, or approximately $120,000,000 annually.

While there are undoubted advantages in unifying the public debt and stabilizing the price of Government obligations, a number of questions are presented by the Freylinghuysen bill. Is it wise as a matter of principle to add $25,000,000,000 of tax-exempt Federal obligations to the existing $12,000,000,000 tax-exempt state and municipal obligations? Will not the tendency be further to divert capital from productive investment at a time when it is none too plentiful?

There is also to be considered the relation a saving of $120,000,000 in interest would bear to the loss the Government would sustain in foregoing the taxes now received from holders of the Liberty Bonds. This can be readily computed by the Treasury Department.

Senator Freylinghuysen may be much too sanguine in the assumption that a $30,000,000,000 3-1/2 per cent tax-exempt refunding issue would remain at par, in view of the present market price of the First Liberty 3-1/2 per cent tax-exempt bonds, which is in the neighborhood of $97. If a refunding issue were exempt as to estate and inheritance taxes also it would be eagerly taken and command a very high price, but there again a serious principle would be involved.

Liberty Bonds are unquestionably low, but they are just as unquestionably cheap. They will not remain where they are for very long. The wise investor is now taking advantage of an opportunity to get them at bargain prices, an opportunity which may never present itself again.

From Col. Proctor's remarks it may be inferred that Gen. Wood's canvass is 99 44-100 pure.

TRAGIC BUNGLING AT EXECUTIONS.

Adam Jackson, a negro, 39 years of age, was hanged Friday at Poplar Bluff, Mo. It was the first execution in the county in 14 years. When the man was first cast down from the platform, the rope broke and he fell to the floor. He had to be reconducted to the platform for a second frightful ordeal with a stouter noose.

The State may shrink from insisting that at least some of its citizens must have a perfected technique in putting other men to death, but if the restored capital penalty is to continue a permanent policy in Missouri, better technique is something it ought to insist on. Infliction of death by order of the courts should not be entrusted to the bungling of officials who, from the nature of things, must be unskilled in applying the means of death. St. Louis City would have no advantage over Poplar Bluff in the command of a hangman of proficiency. It is more than 14 years since there has been an execution in this city.

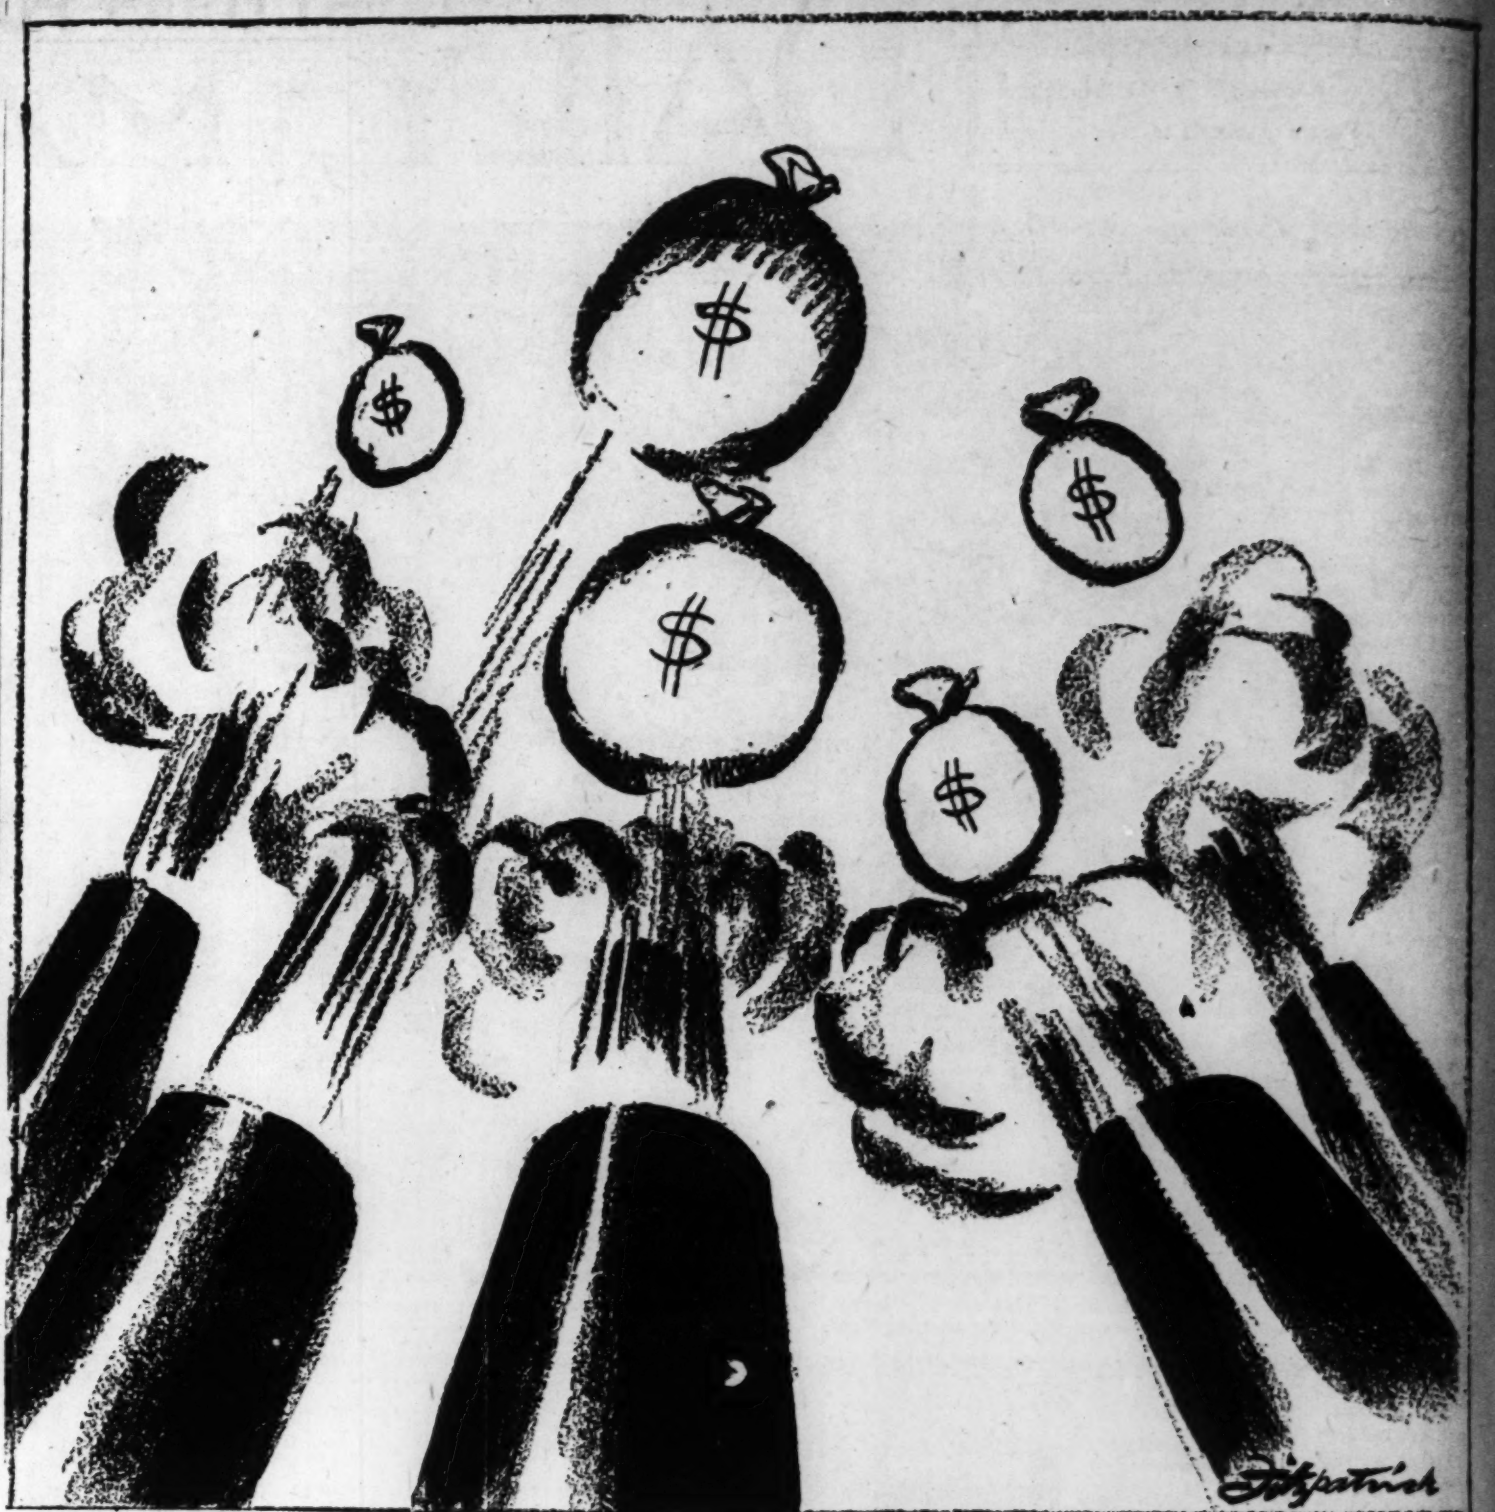

If criminals are to be executed, there should be a central point, preferably the penitentiary, for the performance of the duty, where appliances of the proper sort may be maintained and where the availability of efficiency experts in life taking will not be interrupted by frequent rotation in county offices.

If this change is made the State may wisely consider whether the old common-law method of inflicting capital punishment by the noose should not also be changed. Electric currents of potency have a neatness and quickness that commend themselves in destroying life. At least, with the chair there is no danger of such tragic scenes as that at Poplar Bluff, due to the breaking of the rope.

THE GREATER EVIL?

THE POLITICAL "BOOMS."

MR. ANTWERP'S OPINION.

"SENATOR WILLIAMS thinks we shall be a long time realizing what repudiation of the peace treaty by the Senate has cost both our own country and the world. But I imagine it is already beginning to dawn upon us."

"The thing about it that hurts, so it seems to me, is that the morale of civilization has been impaired by our too close scrutiny of the treaty for the purpose of justifying repudiation of it. That is, we always meant to repudiate it; but we made our reason for so doing seem to be in the treaty itself, whereas it was really outside. The world cannot be expected to know this, and it therefore despairs of peace by any such idealistic means as seemed possible before the political fight began in the Senate."

"This is the thing that is hurting the world as well as its conception of us. The thing has not exactly the thing we would have given it—that is soul. We are not suspected of evil. No importance attaches to respects in which the treaty is faulty. Exactly the same bust-up could have occurred at our own constitutional convention, since we were not agreed that the Constitution was perfect. The thing there was the spirit, which made possible agreement. That gave us the Union, exactly as the absence of it upon this occasion has cost us the thing which the world so much needs."

"The Senate kicked the whole thing into a cocked hat—something any of the nations could have done—something any of them perhaps had as good cause to do. They would not do it; the Senate did. The cost was great—but the Senate said the treaty had blowholes in it, which everyone knew, and took the heart out of earth."

"Senator Williams feels strongly about this. So shall most of us when we realize what has happened. We won't do that until we have witnessed the consequences of abandoning the world after leading it to a place from which it could easily fall off."

A Boston woman whose illness puzzled doctors was found to have a five-inch surgeon's clamp in her abdomen, the souvenir of an operation performed so many years ago that no record of it remained. This reminds one of the precaution taken by the man who was to be untied a second time in order that the surgeon might recover some implement left inside him. He said: "Doc, I wish this time you would simply button me up in case something else in your outfit should turn up missing."

"Aloud"? Yes, but who has "beggars"?

An amusing feature of the Lodge lectures last week was the Weston lineup in the foyer. Everybody we have banished to Weston was out there distributing some sort of leaflet when we went in, and Sir Oliver took the precaution to remind us that none of it had anything to do with him. He was, indeed, giving a very limited entertainment in comparison with those advertised in some of the leaflets. While he ranged nowhere definitely, being restrained by scientific training from making too free use of the known stars and planets, one of the lectures announced in the foyer promised "A Journey to Other Worlds, Including a Trip to the Sun."

Sir Oliver seemed to feel that the spirit world of which he was talking lies about us; but there was nothing local or commonplace about the leaflets which he scarcely felt like sponsoring, since no place we know of was too remote for them, even there and back. The audience keenly appreciated the humor of this situation, in which what we are doing locally seemed to make Sir Oliver look like a piker. It laughed with relief when he announced that he had nothing whatever to do with the distribution of folders illustrated with pictures of the Sphinx, the planets all bound together by some sort of ethereal cord, and comets curving and bursting in space with the grace and brilliancy of rockets. It was rather good, we thought, if not altogether scientific. We had no objection in the world to his dissociation of himself from it, which he could and probably did do without the least prejudice to it as a really creditable index to what home talent is doing in his line.

Gen. Wood has also captured New Mexico, but we are going to be fair to him and not say how he did it.

SOLILOQUY—UPON A THRESHOLD.

TURNED it all from my heart, and yet tonight

It comes again. Perhaps the light
The cruel light, of the moon's cruel moon
Upon the roses, or perhaps the tune
At the café—I do not know.
Except, what I buried long ago
Returns, ghostly and haunting and sweet
As the incense at night from flowers.

Those hours!

Do you remember how hand met hand?
(Fear not to think. We understand
All that could happen no more:
There flows between your shore
And mine, a river of fire
We could not cross, should we desire.)

Aye, how our eyes were innocent and frank,
And how eagerly we drank
At fountains celestially pure.
—I wonder if they could cure
This most terrible thirst.

With which my latter days are cursed?
And the evenings, when the moon was bright,
And cast enchanted shadows, as tonight.
The trees bent downward, whispering, did they not?

(See, even I have half forgot!)
Ah, I must close these doors, I must wake
Somehow. I must manage to break
This spell, or break the heart
I thought unbreakable. (To part Forever!) I must go inside,
And up the stairs steep and wide.

Do you remember them? You carried me
Up them once. We laughed with glee
Because you were so strong, and I so weak.
And then all suddenly we could not speak
When we had reached the door.
I turn from that forever more.

Well, tonight I have glanced Back, as a traveler who has chanced
Upon an oasis, turns and sees
Beyond the sand, the flowers and trees
Grow dim and dimmer, till they seem
But a mirage. Less than a dream!

SENATOR NEWBERRY'S CONVICTION.

From the New York Times.

IN CONVICTING Senator Newberry and in giving him the maximum sentence, the Court at Grand Rapids has also indicted a law. That the raising of large sums of money for honest and legitimate campaign purposes has been a custom for years everybody knows. It is regrettable and deserves condemnation, not because there is any guilt or crime in it, but because it has been shown over and over again to be a foolish waste of money and because campaigns can be and have been conducted much better without it. Now it is made a crime, but only a law-made crime. No participant in it feels any moral guilt or shame. No one loses his standing or is shunned by his associates for it. If it were morally wrong and a crime per se, most of our Presidents would have had to go to Leavenworth. Crimes that are only such by statute never affect the consciences either of the so-called criminals or the people.

SELF-DETERMINATION IN IRELAND.

From Harper's Weekly.

THE home rule bill might well be called an Irish partition bill. It provides not only for the division of Ireland, but for the subdivision of Ulster. That is of course logical, in a way. The majority in Ireland wants to be set off from Great Britain; and the majority in Ulster wants to be set off from the rest of Ireland; and the majority in three Ulster counties wants to be set off from the rest of Ulster; and so on. Great is the law of self-determination. Perhaps some day we shall hear that Sir Edward Carson wants to be set off from the earth! But we shall be greatly, though of course agreeably, surprised if the arrangement is accepted by the majority of Irishmen; and still more if, in case it is accepted, it does not result in intolerable friction between the two parts into which the island is to be divided. That Sir Edward Carson and his followers have decided to accept it will scarcely commend it to the favor of Sinn Fein. Meantime it is to be remembered that a home rule bill, which was then acceptable to the majority of Irishmen, was fully enacted just before the war; that it is still on the statute book, unrepented; and that if it is not repealed or replaced with another it will automatically go into force at the end of the war—if ever there is an end of the war! The fact that it has not already gone into effect seems to indicate that there is some hitch or uncertainty over the ending of the war, over there as well as here. Can it be that home rule is waiting for America's ratification of the treaty and entrance into the league of nations.

LEONARD WOOD.

WALTER LIPPIANN in the New Republic.

THE energies of Leonard Wood are banked down just now to facilitate the scramble for delegates. But they are there. They are energies of ambition and domination greater, I believe, than any that have appeared in American political life within our generation. They are energies that a military career of a spasmodic kind has whetted but not satisfied or organized. The energies of Leonard Wood are fiercer than his intellectual equipment can employ or control. The imperativeness of his speech and recklessness of his manner are the visible signs of a nervous system overstrained by long frustration and income-pleasing exercises. The energies of Wood are pent; when they issue they follow the patterns of his experience, which are to use force, to ship or shoot, to act as the conqueror does among inferior peoples. There is no composure in the character of Wood. There is indeed the flash and the romanticism of a military career of a spasmodic kind. The look is unusually like strength, and is easily mistaken for it.

Dan Cupid Encounters a Brawl Paradox of Success Through Failure...

JOHN

FREDERICK ORIN BARTLETT

A Story of Love and Business With an Unexpected Ending.....

BRADLEY found her the next evening and during the remainder of that month many other evenings. In fact, it became almost a fixed habit in their lives to meet there at the end of every fair day and walk together for an hour. It was something to which Bradley looked forward with increasing interest. Little by little she unfolded to him her eventful history. She was one of many children. Her father occupied a small church in an upstate city and she, foreseeing the necessity of earning her own living, had gone to a business college, instead of to Smith, as he had wished. She had come to New York two years ago and on the whole had been very successful.

"In earning a living," he put in.

"Yes," she answered.

But the pity was, he thought, that she should be obliged to waste her time in any such fashion. She was worth so much more than anything that could be paid for in dollars and cents. And yet for a mere pittance she was selling the best of her time, the best of her energy, the best of her youth. That was not right. There were moments when it seemed to him that he ought to do something about it. Of course, that was absurd, even if he made so bold as to try, there was nothing he could do. But if he had a quarter of a million dollars he knew what he would try.

"Yes, he knew that with an assurance which was growing stronger every day. This took him well forward into the future again and for a while he was content to revel in some brand new dreams. One of the finest featured him as appearing one day before Sears with the information that Miss Babcock would not be in that morning.

"No? Not in this morning?"

"No. Not tomorrow morning."

"What do you mean by that?"

"She has accepted a new position."

"Left me?"

"Yes—to come to me."

"But look here, Bradley, you have no right to steal my secretary like that."

"I'm sorry, but the fact is she's now my wife."

"Good Lord, but the first time he went as far as that he caught his breath. It was, under the circumstances, assuming a good deal. Neither by look nor word had she ever given him any encouragement to believe that there was the slightest trace of sentiment involved in their friendship. And openly he would not have dared on his life to suggest anything of the sort. She was not the kind of girl a man would dare take any such chance with. As long, however, as he kept 20 years away from actually he was safe enough."

Once there came a succession of rainy days when Bradley was unable to see her except as she flitted back and forth in the office. She left a little earlier than he and took the tube back home. Until the next morning she might as well have been dead. So might he for all the joy he got out of living. Pacing his room he tried his dreams again, but somehow they did not work. What he wanted was a sight of her brown eyes and the sound of her gentle voice, and the suspense that came of watching her mobile mouth, wondering into what sort of delectable expression it would break forth next. He could go back, to be sure, and recall in minute detail all that up to now he had been privileged to enjoy, but that was not enough. And compared to actually seeing, it was a feeble pleasure. He needed more than that now—much more.

He tried going downtown alone in the rain where the lights were still shining gayly and music was still in the air and women still turned to glance back at him. But she was not there, so what did it all amount to? What did anything amount to when she was buried as in a tomb until the next morning? He hurried back to his room trying to make some sense out of that thought.

Something had happened to him. In desperation he tried his best to plunge ahead into the future, but he could not get beyond the morrow. At 5:45 she would come into the office looking as fresh as a dew-bathed flower. She would nod to him and disappear in the private office of Sears, where she would remain except for brief intervals until it was time for her to go home. If it still rained that would be the end of her until the next morning. That was as far ahead as he could look. That was his limit.

This was a dangerous symptom. It seemed to indicate some change in him. With flushed cheeks he sat down on the edge of his bed and took a grip on himself. The first thing he knew he would be in love with her—not 20 years from now, but today. This was serious. He had no right to consider anything like that. He was not at all sure that she cared anything about him, but admitting that much, it would be the height of folly for him to try to make his meager salary do for two. Possibly it might be done—his father had managed it—but it meant a terrible handicap. And it meant almost surely wiping out his future. Even his first thousand would disappear. That was what made him sit up.

A man cannot eat his cake and have it. That was what he had told himself, and it was just as true at this moment as it had been six months ago. Then he had not anticipated anything like this, but perhaps this was only a fresh temptation, a temptation which if overcome would leave him stronger than ever. Say if instead of holding on 20 years he made it 15, even 10, even five. Even five would find him in a better position—better for him and better for her.

He must consider her as well as himself. After all, if he really loved her, it meant that he was responsible for two futures instead of one. Sears had taken the gamble, to be sure, and married early, but Sears had won. The end was his justification, but had he lost would he have felt? All the chances had been against him. He had played bull luck, which a man has no right to play.

Bradley took this problem grimly. He was dead honest and dead in earnest. He was in love with Helen. He faced that as a fact. He believed that she cared enough about him to consider his love seriously if he proposed. He may have been wrong, but he believed it. This was not ecstacy. He did not think he was worthy of her, but in spite of that he felt he had a fighting chance.

The Love Letters of the Czarina to the Czar During the War Years

Probably the last correspondence between the ill-fated royal couple—these letters have a universal appeal—men and women—young and old—will thrill to these last intimate disclosures of a royalty already within the shadow of the ghastly tragedy that ended it.

The First Installment of These Letters Will Be Published on This Page Tomorrow

Exclusively in the Post-Dispatch

Isaac Don Levine, an American newspaper correspondent, went to Soviet Russia in March, 1919, though for nearly a year previously not an American newspaper man had entered Soviet Russia.

In the course of his trip to Soviet Russia Mr. Levine was arrested by the Red soldiers and after four days of adventure was brought to Moscow. He remained in Soviet Russia six weeks. Having access to the government archives, he found many documents of world importance. Among these were seventy letters from the Kaiser to the Czar, and 402 letters from the Czarina to the Czar. The letters from the Kaiser to the Czar were published in the Post-Dispatch, creating a veritable sensation. THE LETTERS FROM THE CZARINA TO THE CZAR WILL CREATE AN EVEN GREATER SENSATION.

It was a great and dangerous task to bring these documents from Moscow to America. All the details cannot be revealed of that journey through Latvia, Estonia, Germany and Denmark. The German Consul in one of the big Baltic cities had sent a wireless to his government warning of Mr. Levine's arrival. But Mr. Levine was also warned and conducted himself and his precious papers accordingly. He arrived in Riga when that city was under constant bombardment by the forces of Von der Goltz. It took him forty-eight hours to cover the distance of less than one hundred miles from the Lettish-Belshvirk front to Riga. He left Riga still under fire and, carrying his papers, went to Riga.

The originals of the letters from the Czarina to the Czar are in keeping in Moscow. Mr. Levine had literal copies made of them. They are written in quaint English, the language most familiar to the Czarina, who was the granddaughter of Queen Victoria and received her education in England.

That was all any man could ask for with such a woman.

Granted this much, did he have a right to take this chance? Did he have a right to jeopardize his future and her future for the present? If not he must brace himself for the biggest sacrifice he had yet been called upon to make.

III.

Sears was worried, but none except his wife knew this. Twenty years upon the street had taught him the wisdom of concealing such a tell-tale weakness and taught him how. He came down to breakfast this morning his same jaunty self, nodded a pleasant greeting to the servants, ate his usual breakfast, adjusted his usual boutonniere, lighted a cigarette and turned to kiss his wife good-bye before entering his car. But she was not as good an actress as he was actor. She looked frankly troubled. There were traces of furrows on her white forehead between her pretty blue eyes and she did not appear as rested as she should after the quiet evening at home she had enjoyed yesterday. Even so, she could not help looking beautiful—tenderly beautiful. Care could not alter the fine lines of her delicate features and slender body. As he started to leave she placed her white hand upon his arm.

"Bobbie," she said, "I wish you'd come home early today."

"It will all depend on how the day turns out," he answered.

"The worse it turns out the earlier I want you home," she insisted.

"You're such a trump," he exclaimed. "That's why it hurts so when things don't turn out right."

"If it's really me you're considering and I say it doesn't matter, why do you let it matter?"

"You don't understand, little woman."

"I understand perfectly," she contradicted.

"You've plunged on oils and—"

He checked her with a warning hand upon her arm. He was suspicious even of the servants. He acted like a man under surveillance.

"Bobbie, Bobbie," she whispered anxiously. "Your nerves are in bad shape. If you'd only pulled out a year ago!"

"I'm not licked yet," he answered grimly. "And if I do win we'll have something worth while."

"You've said that so often before."

"But this time!"

She came closer and whispered in his ear:

"Remember, Bobbie," she said, "remember all day long that even if you're licked you'll mean just as much to me."

Sears stepped hurriedly into the limousine and waved her a cheerful good-bye. But the moment the car turned the corner of the graveled road his face grew worried again. She had spoken like a game sport, but that only made it the more necessary for him to win. A man could not come back to such a woman dragging his tail behind him. He would not be a man if he did. He had promised her big things and she deserved big things and he would get them yet. He would place her on the avenue among the best of them, where she belonged.

He had been a trifle too eager on this last deal and had overstepped. Starting conservatively enough, he thought he saw a chance to corner the market on Eldora and had kept on until considerably beyond his depth. He had put up everything he owned and broken his rule and played on margins. It was only in the last few days that he began to suspect that someone a little sharper than he had lured him on and was playing against him with apparently unlimited resources. The market had followed him up faster than he had expected, but now he had no alternative but to hold on and keep buying. If he did not the bottom would drop and then—

Today would tell the story. He must play his last hundred thousand in an attempt to gain control. He had borrowed that of Pettigill on the last resource he had—his interest in the business. It had been too late yesterday to use the money. The stock had closed at 25—a 20-point rise over the beginning of his operations. If he could hold it there he had a chance. To do that he must buy as fast as the stock was offered. If not the price would begin to sag and before he could get out would drop as rapidly as it had advanced.

Sears stepped jauntily from his car at the office and nodded gayly to Bradley as he passed. It made the younger man draw a quick, sharp breath and set his jaws grimly. He watched him enviously as he disappeared into the room marked private, where Miss Babcock was waiting. He turned back to his work with a fresh resolution.

Sears sat down at his desk and nervously went over his morning mail which his secretary had sorted for him. She noticed that he appeared nervous over it and did not give it the thought it deserved. He studied his watch and seemed strangely pained because he could not reach Martin on the telephone.

"It is hardly time for him yet," she reminded him.

Martin operated from the floor.

"But hang it all!"

He checked himself and began to pace the office while she waited expectantly for dictation. But he had forgotten his mail. That was not important this morning.

It was another 10 minutes before Martin finally called. Then Sears came to life and gave a half-dozen assured commands.

"Yes, sir," replied Martin.

"I'll hold the wire open. Keep Winton on the other end."

"Right, sir."

Ten minutes more, or 15 at the most, would tell the story. By then the tide would either turn in his favor or against him. That period would test his courage to the utmost.

The details of what followed on the market were of no more than local interest. Eldora opened at 26 and shot to 30 and then to 35. At that point all buying power was exhausted and it dropped by fives to 20, to 15, to 10, to 5. In an hour it was all over and Sears was left with several hundred thousand shares of stock which averaged him 15. That was all there was to it. The little flurry had passed and trading in other securities went on normally.

Sears hung up the telephone receiver and, chalk-faced, turned to Miss Babcock, who had been watching the little tragedy with heightened color, though not able fully to grasp its significance. He moistened his lips and spoke in a dull voice.

"Well," he said, "that—that's all over."

"Yes, Mr. Sears," she answered politely.

He faced his mail and picked up a letter. She adjusted her pad upon her knee. Then he dropped the letter and, elbows on desk, pressed his hands against his throbbing temples. His eyes wandered a moment and then fixed themselves on a drawer in the right-hand corner of the desk. They were held there. Twice he shook himself free and twice his eyes returned to that drawer as though attracted there against his will.

Miss Babcock was worried. She had never seen him like this. There was an unnatural look in those excited eyes. She wished Mr. Bradley were here and tried to think of some excuse for calling him in. Even the silence was uncanny. She finally broke it by asking:

"Did you wish to dictate, Mr. Sears?"

"Dictate?" he replied with a start. "What is there to dictate?"

"You haven't answered your morning mail yet."

"Eh? There isn't any to answer. It's all over."

She did not understand.

"There was an order from Mr. Kittredge."

He wheeled in his chair.

"That goes to Pettigill. I'm out. O, my God, I'm out forever."

She could not make any intelligent reply, but she felt she had to say something.

"Perhaps it—it isn't as bad as you think."

"I'm a bankrupt wreck," he choked. "It's as bad as that. I—I—"

Fables for the Fair

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall.

THE trouble With this married couple was that they tried to save daylight With differently geared watches.

His put breakfast time at least two hours ahead of hers. For how could anybody expect a Lady of Pleasure Who had danced till 2 o'clock in the morning To pour coffee at 8 a. m. for a Man of Affairs. While wearing a pink breakfast out and a happy smile? He frequently could not leave his office in time to dress for the early dinner.

She and the cook preferred.

Pretty soon they were saving a corner-table for him at the club.

Naturally, she wasn't going to lose touch with her friends. Just because he was too tired, as he said, and too selfish, as she said. To be her escort for a seven-night week?

So they didn't see much of each other evenings.

And that's how they burned the marriage at both ends—

Like so many other uptown wives and downtown husbands.

Wives in the leisure class, husbands in the working class!

Now marriage may and does survive the disappearance of mutual passion. But without mutual conversation it's all off!

Unless a man can talk to his wife about the winner he picks in baseball, the condemned, congenial idiosyncrasy of the Republican (Democratic) party and his favorite method of preventing colds—

Unless she can talk to him about the latest imposition in the kitchen, her bargain purchase of puppydog satin and the shameless way Mrs. Smithers cheats at bridge—

Last call for Reno!

The Man of Affairs and the Lady of Pleasures never had a minute together—

Then how could they have a word or a confidence together?

Nature abhors a vacuum.

Since he could not talk to his wife, He talked to his stenographer.

Not wisely, but too well!

As for the Lady of Pleasures, She talked

To the obliging tea hound.

Who knew just enough to live on his inherited money

And take lovely, lonely married ladies to parties.

Marrying one of them

Wasn't on his score-card.

But, of course, he had to do it, after the Lady of Pleasures

Went through all the agonies of an unrepented divorce suit and the humiliation of ample alimony

For his sake

Oh, yes, and the Man of Affairs treated the stenographer with chivalry!

The stern moralist may know—he usually does—where the blame belongs!

As for me, I am perfectly willing to lay it all on the parallel lines in geometry—

They set such a horrible example to every Man of Affairs married to a Lady of Pleasures—

They NEVER meet!

Reflections of a Bachelor Girl

By Helen Rowland.

COLUMBUS may have discovered America; but it took Blaise Pascal to discover its greatest charm—the peerless American husband!

Prudence is what makes a girl insist on ringing in Mendelssohn, the moment that a man's heart begins singing. "Just a little love—a little kiss!"

Home is the place where you have all the little comforts and conveniences—and never can find them; lots of closet room—but somebody else takes all the hooks; and the privilege of doing as you please—and nobody will let you!

A woman-hater is a man who has spent his whole life in "eating his cake," and is suffering from chronic sentimental indignation.

At 20 the only "perfect end of a day" is a kiss—but after 30, it is that exquisite moment, when a woman slips out of all her stiff things and kicks off her slippers.

No use telling a flapper that a man's ideals are noble and his character straight, if his nose and his shoulders don't match them.

What woman can doubt the existence of the supernatural when her Oulja board tells her that her husband is going to fly into a brain-storm about the price of her spring outfit—and he comes right home and DOES IT?

It's a wise lover who will never give or take a meaningless kiss—even to DEFACE a woman. A daily diet of insipid kisses, like a daily diet of unseasoned truffles soon palls on the appetite.

A man marries when he is tired of playing the woman, when she is tired of working, and then they both wonder why marriage gives them "that tired feeling."

Don't fancy your husband's love is dead merely because he sneaks in by the back door with his shoes in his hand; wait until he comes boldly in the front door, at 2 a. m., without bothering to deceive you.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

The Happiness of Johnny Chuck.

"If you would truly happy be,"
Says Johnny Chuck, "Just follow me,
Keep busy at some useful work
And not a single day shirk."

JOHNNY CHUCK was happy. Yes, sir, Johnny Chuck was happy. It was the first time he had been really happy since he had awakened from his long sleep. The fact is, from the time he had woken, his head out of his doorway to see if the Mistress Spring had arrived until now he had been most unhappy. You see, he had had hard work to find anything to eat. He had grown thin and he had been very much out of sorts.

But now Johnny Chuck was really happy. Can you guess why he was happy? It was because he was at work. He was so busy that he didn't have time to be unhappy. There is nothing like work to make one contented and forgetful of troubles. Johnny Chuck was so happy that he actually tried to sing. Had you been there you wouldn't have known he was trying to sing, because Johnny cannot sing any more than can Peter Rabbit. But in his heart there was a song. He had quite forgotten his fight with the dog, and the terrible fright Old Man Coyote had given him. He had no room for such thoughts. All he could think of was the joy of working and of the splendid new home he was making for himself and Polly Chuck.

It was real work that Johnny Chuck was doing. It was hard work. First he had to dig the sand loose for his forepaws. He was thankful that Old Mother Nature had given him such stout claws. They were splendid claws for digging, and when he had dug a lot of sand loose he had to push it all back and out of his front door. The farther into the ground he got the farther he had to push that sand out. Once Johnny found a big stone in the way. He had to make a turn in his tunnel there. But even that extra work didn't trouble Johnny.

"I hope Polly Chuck will like this place," thought Johnny. "I'm sure she will. I don't see how she could possibly help it. We'll have the fin-didn't get rid of that fat I wouldn't do a blessed thing more than I had to. She was quite right. If I had remained as fat as I was when I first came out I couldn't have dug a foot without losing my breath." Johnny stopped digging and pushed a lot of sand back and out of his doorway. He was getting a good sized mound of yellow sand out there now. He went out and sat upon it for a few minutes to get some fresh air, rest a bit and look over the Green Meadows. "Yes, sir," said Johnny Chuck, talking to himself, "this is the finest place ever. Farmer Brown's cornfield is right here. I do hope he will plant some squashes in among the corn. There is going to be plenty of sweet clover right over back of me here on the Green Meadows. We won't have to go far to get all we want to eat. There couldn't be at better place to bring up a family. There's Redwing the Blackbird over there. It certainly is good to hear his voice again. And just listen to Carol the Meadow Lark! My, Polly Chuck

GOOD BOOKS FOR MOTHERS.

A MOTHER needs good books to help her in the intricate business of child-rearing, just as much as a housekeeper needs good cook-books in the kitchen. On every mother's kitchen shelf, beside the standard cook-books there should be a standard book on the physical needs of children, and one or more on their mental and moral needs. A good many old times in the day come when she can sit down for a few minutes and refresh herself for her tasks by dipping into these books.

Perhaps she noticed some symptoms in the child yesterday that worried her, some local irritation, or fretfulness, or languor. She can set her mind at rest by looking it up in Emmet Holt's, "The Care and Feeding of Children," a standard book, safe, careful and clear. Prevention is better than cure, and Holt's book has saved many a child from an illness, and many a doctor's bill.

Perhaps a mother is troubled by some new naughty tendency, some habit that she cannot understand. She can look that up, too, in such a book as Kirkpatrick's "Fundamentals of Child Study." She can get inspiration to fresh patience in her life of a thousand details by reading such a wholesome, cheerful book as Elizabeth Harrison's "A Study of Child Nature." It is a great comfort to know that most children have to go through certain phases, and to have advice about how to help them through, with the least wear and tear for them and for her.

Being a mother is a task of infinite variety; it calls upon every ability a woman has, and constantly bids her learn more than she knows. If she has three books such as these at her command, she has reliable and inspiring assistance in her difficult task.

Will surely like it down here. I'll bring her down here just as soon as I've got a bedroom finished."

Johnny took two or three long breaths of the soft spring air, then went back to his digging. How he did make his little black paws fly as he dug out the sand! And as he worked there was again a song in his heart. He was very, very happy. Was Johnny Chuck, for there is nothing like working for those we love to make happiness, and Johnny Chuck was working for Polly Chuck as well as for himself.

When the Worthy Suffer for the Worthless

By Sophie Irene Loeb.

A FEW days ago a man was sent to the workhouse for three months. He was a "faker." He carried a sign which read as follows: "Please help a veteran of the late war. I was shot five times through both hips, stabbed in the back with a bayonet and cut with a cavalry sabre."

The man also carried a crutch, which he admitted to the Judge was only a part of the paraphernalia which he used to deceive.

This man is but 36 years old and has never been in the war.

This is the kind of example that causes untold misery to many people. This man may be a pauper, but he certainly is a pirate, who preys on sympathy which he does not deserve.

When you stop to think of the many real sufferers who have a different appeal, who need help and who should be helped, one is naturally incensed at the actions of such a one as this.

His crime is not only against himself and the public at large, but against all the unfortunate ones who really need help. Many persons hesitate at giving assistance because they do not know whether such aid is deserved or whether they are being fooled.

Such a man should be punished to the full letter of the law in order not to hurt those who are honest. When you think of a man of 36 not having backbone enough to go out and battle for his own living, but instead on begging it, the workhouse is little enough and the authorities should follow him up to

Rickey Has Four Hurlers Ready to Oppose Brownies

Doak, Haines, Goodwin and Schupp to Be Relied Upon in Series.

MACKMEN TAKE THE LEAD

Gain One-Game Advantage Over Cardinals by Winning 13th Tilt, 15 to 3.

HOUSTON, Tex., March 29.—The thirteenth game of the prolonged series between the Cardinals and Athletics, yesterday, proved a night-mare for the Cardinals. The game was a 15 to 3 in favor of the Athletics and the victory put the Athletics one game to the good in the series.

Bill Doak went seven and one-third innings and was succeeded by Jess Haines. Opposed to the Cardinals was Bryan Harris, the six-foot right-hander, bought by Connie Mack from the Houston club. During the last five rounds, Scott Perry pitched and blanked the Knot Hole gang.

As the Macks got off three runs to the good in the first inning and added another in the third, Harris had easy sailing. Doak got hit but asked to be permitted to go the route.

The Cardinals and Macks begin their march farther north this morning. The fourteenth game will be played this afternoon at College Station, Tex.

Manager Rickey is well pleased with the condition of the club. Rogers Hornsby, who was complaining of a sore arm, has begun to whip the ball across the diamond and by next Saturday when the series with the Browns begins at Sportsman's Park, should be in condition.

Four Pitchers Ready.

Doak was hit hard yesterday, but proved that he has the strength to go the route. The game goes for the Cardinals. Haines and Goodwin while Schupp's performance in the game here Saturday shows that the famous left-hander can be relied on at any time.

The club is hitting and as the first five games of the series, with the Browns will be spread out over a period of nine days the four above named pitchers will be able to carry the club through with Jacobs, Woodward, Sherdell, May and Schulz in reserve.

NEW YORK, March 29.—The financial review today, says "Business on the Stock Exchange today was on a reduced scale of activity, which was possibly due in part to the interruption of telegraph service to the West and South by yesterday's storm. However, the market might easily have occurred as a natural result of last week's feverish advance, complicated with the influence of high money rates.
